HURLEY TO SHAKE UP BANK DEPT.

MAPS ACTION ON HOSPITAL TRUSTEES

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Hurley disclosed today that not only is he contemplating a drastic change in the makeup of bank liquidation agents, but he is also considering a return of their powers to trustees of Boston State Hospital.

He declared:

"I have three lawyers on my secretarial staff who are looking up the law to determine if the powers of the Boston State Hospital trustees were taken away illegally," he declared. "If this is so, I will rescind the act and return their powers."

The "act" to which the new governor referred was that of former Governor Curley who had abrogated "under the stampede" the privileges of trustees and had conferred them on Dr. David L. Williams, Jr., state mental diseases commissioner.

BANK DEPT. CLEAN-OUT

Governor Hurley confirmed the story published in the Boston Evening American that he had under consideration removal of a number of attorneys as liquidating agents for closed banks.

He had attacked the costs of

$10,000 THEFT IN BROCKTON WAREHOUSE

Brockton, Jan. 8 — Trapped helplessly for more than two hours, a night watchman and his fiancee were forced at gunpoint to become prisoners in a Montello street warehouse today while eight bandits looted the place of cigarettes and tobacco valued at $10,000.

Fortunate to escape without being shot, they were first forced to lie on the floor of the warehouse, and then were penned in a huge van which the bandits backed against the wall just before they escaped.

The victims of the robbery were John Alberti, 27, of North Main street and Miss Stella McBride, 25, of Huntington street. They were rescued an hour after the bandits sped away with their loot by another watchman who came to relieve Alberti.

GIRL TELLS STORY

Miss McBride, who is engaged to be married to Alberti, told a Boston Evening American reporter her story of the robbery:

"John called me up at the candy store where I work to bring him some medicine. I got through at 11 o'clock and went do it to the pool.

"I found the door of the warehouse garage open and as soon as I got there a man grabbed me and took me inside. He put a revolver up to my back and told me to 'keep

Army Captain Dismissed

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt today approved a court martial sentence dismissing Capt. Ralph E. Forester, of the quartermaster corps, from the army. Forester was tried on charges involving alleged misappropriation of army property and conduct unbecoming an officer.

Roosevelt Meets Moran of Maine

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Former Representative Edward C. Moran, Jr., Maine Democrat, talked with President Roosevelt today but declined to say afterward whether he expected an appointment to the Federal Maritime Commission.

Moran, frequently has been mentioned for one of the two vacancies on the commission. He did not run for re-election last November.

Strings for 'Bridegroom Jim' to Pull

"OLD BOY" JAMES McENANEY EX-GOVERNOR CURLEY MRS. CURLEY FRANCIS CURLEY

It's a cold day when somebody doesn't turn out to greet former Governor Curley—and they always maintain the temperatures in New York's Grand Central terminal at an even 70 degrees! The former governor and his bride thought no one, except their own party, knew when they were leaving their special honeymoon car on the Merchants' Limited, but this shoelace merchant, an old Bostonian, was waiting for them. "Hello, Old Boy," the ex-governor greeted his old acquaintance. And when "Old Boy" made a presentation of a pair of his best shoelaces, the ex-governor returned with a five-dollar bill. The new Mrs. Curley got quite a "kick" out of it. James F. McEnaney of the Boston Evening American is beside the former governor, Young Francis Curley is on the extreme right.

100,000 IDLE BY NIGHT IN AUTO WAR

Auto Deadlock

Governor Murphy resumes efforts to bring auto strikers and General Motors officials together.

Estimated 100,000 auto workers idle by nightfall.

Canadian plants shutdown imminent.

A. F. L. Detroit local takes slap at C. I. O.

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Jan. 8—Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan resumed his efforts to bring General Motors officials together with representatives of their striking employes today.

Maritime shutdowns of the corporation's plants spread and a new "sit-down" strike affected 4800 workers.

The governor, after acting with James F. Dewey, federal labor department conciliator, in conferences lasting through the night, appeared alone at General Motors offices shortly after 11 o'clock this morning and immediately conferred with William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president.

BILLION FOR U. S. ARMS DEMANDED

President Roosevelt's Budget Message on Page 10.

Washington, Jan. 8—With Europe apparently on the brink of war, President Roosevelt, in his budget message today, asked Congress to make the largest peace time military and naval appropriation in the nation's history.

The President asked a billion dollar allotment for national defense and revealed later that he had already given orders to the Navy Department to lay the keels of two new 35,000-ton battleships, to cost $100,000,000.

Increased expenditures for airplanes are also provided for in his budget. The army and navy together will purchase approximately 1000 new fighting planes in the fiscal year 1937-38, which the budget covers.

The President in the same message asked Congress to provide $790,000,000 for the Works Progress Administration to carry on relief until June 30, the end of the current fiscal period. His forecast an expenditure of $1,852,154,000 for this purpose in the year ending June 30, 1938.

The 1937-1938 budget he declared to be "in balance" from a layman's point of view, and predicted it would be balanced to the satisfaction of the most critical experts, if economic improvement continues.

NUISANCE TAXES

His proposed allotments for battleships matches the action of Great Britain which, with the expiration

POPE, GIVEN MONTH TO LIVE, ASKS WORK

By FRANK GERVASI
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Vatican City, Jan. 8—Pope Pius, after a "relatively restful night," today renewed his insistence that he resume work—actively within the opinion of doctors, would end short the month that they now feel is the maximum the Pope can stave off death.

A semi-official bulletin disclosed the Pope is now able to partake of solid food. He is being delicately nourished with hot-beef squash and string-beans, grown for him at Castel Gandolfo, the papal Summer estate.

His condition was described as "satisfactory" but it was said his mode of life has taken as normal a course as can be expected.

In a sick person of the Pope's age and condition," the bulletin warned, "complications are always possible."

In this connection, his personal physician, Dr. Amanti Milani, is constantly with him for new symptoms.

The Pope, it was said, eats sparingly but with a good appetite.

The Pope received Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, in an interview lasting an hour and half, longest in recent weeks.

The Pontiff announced he intends to deliver a special message to the Eucharistic Congress meeting in Manila February 7 by short wave radio. He would appeal again for peace and issue a special call for intensification of the fight against Communism.

The Pope told intimates he feels in better spirits since he has been permitted to resume a part of his former activities.

Truck Drivers Win Wage Raise

Under the terms of an agreement effected today and which averted a serious strike in Boston of truck drivers, an increase of $3 weekly in three major classifications was given, Thomas F. Curley, chairman of the state board of conciliation and arbitration, disclosed today.

In the three classifications drivers will be raised from $30 to $33 a week; from $32 to $35 and from $34 to $37. To drivers of special trucks subsidiary increases were given.

Curleys On to Hawaii; Sail With Cardinal

New York, Jan. 8—Ex-Governor James M. Curley and his bride leave here at 6 o'clock this evening for Nassau, Bahamas, on the Cunard-White Star liner Britannic, the same steamer that is carrying Cardinal O'Connell to his winter home.

Later, it was learned authoritatively today, the honeymooning couple will go by boat through the Panama Canal to Honolulu, returning to Boston in about six weeks.

Thrilled by the sendoff given him as he left the State House yesterday, the happy bridegroom indicated quite plainly that he expects to be Boston's next mayor, making his fourth four-year term in that office. He is rejecting three attractive offers to go into private industry.

N. Y. POLICE ESCORT

The Curley party, numbering 25, is occupying nearly an entire floor at the Hotel Biltmore. Reporters and visitors kept arriving throughout the day. There were many

ROOSEVELT, JR., QUITS HOSPITAL FOR CAPITAL

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., left Phillips House of Massachusetts General Hospital today after a 10-week stay and immediately entrained for Washington on the noonday express "The Senator."

All went smoothly at the departure, except that the ex-patient's brother, John, had to explain to Patrolman Michael J. McCarthy that his automobile registration papers had been pilfered while his car was parked in Clarendon street, Back Bay, this morning. It was "all right," though.

Brother John sped his ailing relation to the South Station in a fast coupe and as he was boarding the train, Franklin said that the ride would be no bad—because his fiancee, Miss Ethel du Pont was going to join him at Wilmington, Del.

Franklin will remain in Washington for two or three days, then go to Florida to convalesce from his long illness. He hopes to be back at Harvard in time for April "make-ups."

Young Roosevelt was pretty washed-out looking when he appeared on the steps of the Phillips House on the arm of his younger brother, John.

But he was smiling when he greeted a gallery of 20 newspaper reporters and cameramen — this same youth who was once a terror to photographers.

"Hello, everybody!" he said

NEW ENGLAND SOLONS WIN CHOICE SENATE POSTS

EX-GOV. BRIDGES, LODGE, JR., GIVEN ASSIGNMENT PLUMS

By LUTHER CONANT, JR.

Washington, Jan. 8—Choice committee assignments have fallen the way of the 75th Senate's only new Republican members, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, and Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Because of the small Republican minority representation in committees in all, both were assigned two major committees in addition to four minor ones.

In the past, a new senator generally received no major appointment.

PLUM FOR BRIDGES

Choicest plum of all went to Senator Bridges, whose two years as governor of New Hampshire ranks him ahead of Senator Lodge in committee preference.

He has received a place on the highly coveted and important committee on appropriations, the first new senator in many years to be rendered such an honor.

Apprised of his assignments, Senator Bridges bewilder admitted that he was "heartily pleased" with the appointment and that it had exceeded his expectations.

His other major committee is that of military affairs.

Senator Lodge, whose grandfather at one time held membership on seven major committees, was assigned to the important committee of military affairs and banking and currency.

He and Senator Bridges compose one-half of the minority representation on the military affairs committee, as against 23 Democrats, while a third New England senator, Warren R. Austin of Vermont, is ranking Republican member.

LODGE PLEASED

Two of his minor committee assignments are particularly gratifying to Senator Lodge, those of manufactures and interoceanic canals.

The young junior senator from the Bay State told this correspondent that he "considered himself very fortunate indeed" in his appointments.

"As a member young in years and service," he said, "I am gratified to obtain such important committee assignments which conform to my preferences.

"These assignments give me great opportunity for constructive service."

His two major committees supplement almost perfectly the committees upon which Senator David I. Walsh has served for many years.

With Senator Walsh as chairman of the committee on naval affairs and his senior colleague one of four Republicans on military affairs, Massachusetts is well represented in the senate.

Senator Lodge's activity on the committee on banking and currency will be supplemented by Senator Walsh's position as member of the finance committee.

Curley Newlyweds Head For Hawaii Honeymoon

pictures taken and the former Governor entertained a large number at luncheon in a private dining room on the floor where the party's rooms are situated.

Mayor Timilty completed arrangements with Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine of New York for an escort to whisk the party to Pier 90, North river, later this afternoon.

Snatching a couple of hours to be alone with his bride, Curley walked with her through Times square and then taxied to the Empire State building, where they went to the top for the view. Afterwards they went to the Battery and through the aquarium.

Here returning to the Biltmore they did some shopping in one of the large stores.

"I look forward to a very pleasant chat with His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell," said the ex-Governor, whose marriage to Mrs. Gertrude M. Dennis took place only two hours before his term as chief executive expired.

The bride, who had been first lady of her state for those two hours, is on her first visit to this city.

"I'm thrilled and having a very enjoyable time," she said.

She telephoned from the bridal suite to her mother and children in Brookline and her husband talked with the children, too.

"MAYOR MUST RETURN"

Interviewed by New York newspapermen, Curley said:

"I've been unfortunate to have been in public office during periods of depression but I have left the stat ein a happy mood. The demonstration as I left the State House showed the people demand that one of their former mayors shall return to City Hall."

He was queried about Father Coughlin and simply said that the radio priest, in his opinion, has definitely effaced himself from political life in our Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

One of the positions which was offered to Curley today is with a large insurance company. The retiring governor views his career as a political one. He has no desire to plunge into private enterprise in anyacapabley, but evidently thinks his public career is far from ended.

BRIEF STAY IN NASSAU

Most of the Curley party slept very late. They arrived here in a special car at 10 p. m. yesterday and made a brief tour of night clubs, returning to the hotel soon after midnight.

The honeymooners plan to spend only a few days at Nassau.

The honeymoon itinerary was made known exclusively to the Boston Evening American by the former chief executive of the Commonwealth, now plain Citizen Curley, at his suite in the Biltmore Hotel here today.

He said he did not care to discuss reports that he might be appointed governor-general of the Philippine Islands by President Roosevelt at the present time.

Through the Boston Evening American he also sent his thanks to the people of Boston and his loyal friends who had made him the center of an unprecedented demonstration as he made the traditional solitary walk down the State House steps after handing over the administration of the Commonwealth to his successor, Governor Charles F. Hurley.

EXTENDS THANKS

"The appearance of the huge throngs at the State House as I left was unprecedented and most gratifying to me," the former governor said.

"I have never known such a sincere and heartfelt tribute—men, women and children standing and waiting in the rain to show their kindly feelings toward me.

"I want to express my sincere thanks and appreciation and I want all my loyal friends to know that I will be with them soon to work with them and for them."

An amusing, yet touching, incident took place in the concourse of Grand Central terminal when the honeymooners left their train. Although advance of their movements had been given out—to avoid the curious—and yet one old man seemed to have had some sort of psychic information on the subject.

GIFT OF SHOELACES

An old Bostonian, now engaged in the retail shoelace business on New York's back streets, this man was right in the path of the party.

"Greetings, governor, and congratulations!" he said.

"Well, well, hello, old boy," the ex-governor answered, refusing to be surprised. "It appears that we have met before."

"We have, sir," the greeter said. "And I want to present you with a pair of my fine shoelaces—for a wedding present."

"And I want to present you with this —" said the governor, slipping a five-dollar bill into the man's hand. "There's a present right back to you."

Nazi Reichstag To Meet Jan. 30

Berlin, Jan. 8 (AP)—The German Reichstag (parliament) has been summoned to meet Jan. 30, the beginning of the fifth year of National Socialism in Germany, reliable sources reported today.

Reichstag officials said they had no knowledge of the convocation and that no call had been issued to the members.

Test O.K.

Brooklyn, Jan. 8 (AP)—Jack Jarmark, arrested as intoxicated, told the judge he was.

"It all happened," he explained, "at a ball of the Distillers' Association. We were testing out a new whiskey. It was good. It got the better of me."

"I think you're telling the truth," the judge ruled. "Sentence suspended."

Scarlet Letter Book Offering For Tomorrow

Tomorrow, those who saved the coupons in the latest series of the Book-A-Week offer of the Boston Evening American will receive their copies of Nathaniel Hawthorne's immortal "Scarlet Letter."

The story of the "Scarlet Letter" ought to be in every home, not only for its romantic value, but for the vivid picture it portrays of the Massachusetts Bay Colony back three hundred years ago.

Boston Evening American readers who have enjoyed this classic in past years don't need to be told of the value of this book.

Young people who are reading it in school ought to know what it is worth. Their teachers are telling them now, but in years to come, they will fully appreciate it.

This book ought to be in EVERY home. You cannot afford to pass up this opportunity of securing it. Why don't you?

MOTHER DYING AS BABY IS BORN

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 8 (AP)—Surgeons saved an unborn baby today after the 19-year-old mother was shot fatally.

The dying expectant mother, Mrs. Elsie Randall, was taken from her home to the Alameda County Hospital for Caesarean delivery of a seven-pound boy. A few minutes after delivery Mrs. Randall died from a bullet wound in the left temple.

Chief of Police Bodie Wallman said Mrs. Amelia Hohnhaus, 65, her aunt, reported Ray Randall, 21, fired the bullets after his estranged wife refused his offer of reconciliation. The shooting occurred in an apartment occupied by the two women. Mrs. Hohnhaus was wounded in the jaw.

Randall, a student aviator, was arrested later in the home of his mother, Mrs. A. L. Randall, in nearby Alameda. Randall denied he did the shooting or even was at his wife's apartment.

The operation was performed when Dr. Clarence Du Puy, hospital surgeon, realized the unconscious young wife was near death.

Dr. Du Puy reported the infant, which normally would have been born in about a month, was strong and healthy and will live.

Mrs. Hohnhaus said her niece came here a year ago from Indianapolis and married Randall. They separated a short time later.

The young husband continued to call and give his wife money but they quarreled frequently, Mrs. Hohnhaus said.

"Then last night," Chief Wallman quoted the aunt, "he came with the cheerful news that he had found a job. My niece sat on the sofa with him. Suddenly he pulled out a pistol and shot her."

Two Words Start Miami's Gambling Wheels Spinning

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—Mert Wertheim found two obscure words in the act legalizing slot machines in Florida, and so today there was a big new gambling wing at his Royal Palm night club.

The words are "other devices" and the law says they may be licensed as well as slot machines, although the fee for an "other device" is $500 while a slot permit costs $250.

Wertheim, eight spot impresario of Broadway and Biscayne Boulevard, claims "other devices" means dice tables and roulette wheels—just so they have a coin slot to run them. He backed his stand with impressive legal opinion.

Mrs. Hurley Shines as Mother in Happy Home

Camera Studies of First Lady

Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, wife of the governor, turns for a minute to listen to her neighbor, smiles at the remark (probably in praise of her husband's inaugural address), and then answers, as "First Lady of the Commonwealth."

"Will you pass . . . please?" "Surely." She's passing the plate, left, and then takes a bit of food herself, unaware of the cameraman. To Mrs. Hurley's right is Mrs. Walter Gherardi, wife of the commandant at the Navy Yard.

HOUSEHOLD PROBLEMS ENGROSS HER ATTENTION

It may have been Mrs. Charles F. Hurley's first full day as First Lady of the Commonwealth but it was just another in her life-time role as mother.

First Mother as well as First Lady of the Commonwealth, mother of four children, social problems and party invitations mind as readily as mail from governors and government agencies engross the attention of the new governor.

You can be sure the new executive mansion at 35 Beacon Street, Boston, will be a home when Charles Hurley Jr. and his wife visit Mr. and Mrs. Hurley, as they have been doing frequently since the governor's election.

Mrs. Hurley is the unassuming type of helpmate who shuns the glare of headlines and photographer's flashlights to say husband. She's content in her role as mother to Betty, Charles Jr., Sally and Nancy.

Dark-haired, attractive, with a warm smile, she knows herself with the problems of housekeeping, both living and entertaining at the two-hundred-and-fifty house in Lansdowne.

Born Maryan Conner, the daughter of James J. Conner, a successful real estate operator, she was educated at Maryville Academy, and has always retained her interest in charity and similar affairs.

NEIGHBORLY WIFE

Her neighborliness is evidenced in the fact that on the governor's military staff are two of the First Lady's cousins-in-law, Basil Dinhart and John Whitney.

Political business and politics are rocket and plunge into both, charged, counseled and consoled cause of state may threaten, but if Mayor Frank Speare is the same, she proper setting for the Mrs. Charles F. Hurley who rules as First Mother as well as First Lady.

BILL ASKS NEW PORT BOARD

Establishment of a new Boston Port Authority with powers to control, plan and operate all port facilities within a radius of 25 miles of the State House is sought under the terms of a bill filed at the State House today by Representative Charles F. Lamperti of Newton.

Lamperti is chairman of the special commission on port development.

Governor Hurley has recommended that the Legislature permit the commission to continue its study of port facilities.

KILLERS Denounce JUSTICE

2 DIE IN CHAIR AT SING SING

(Special to Boston Evening American)

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 8 — Squealing their innocence, two of the six men who stuck up Edwin Esposito and then killed him, died in Sing Sing prison while four of their comrades in murder knelt on the cold, hard stone of the death house and prayed for their souls.

The two who died were Joseph "Tough Tony" Bologna and Theodore Di Donne, the eldest of the six whom Governor Lehman refused clemency while he saved the other four.

Di Donne was the first to sit in the quiet chair and embrace death, and he cried in a weak voice as his time legs doubled:

"This is where injustice triumphs."

Bologna's was more lengthy.

He waved the cross of Father McCaffrey aside and asked to be heard. Then, he denouncing his treatment from newspapermen, and, in a last show of bravado gazed thru thick specs at the Dist. Attorney and the girl who sent him to his death.

Wanted to Talk

"Where is that rat Scata?" asked Di Donne as he went through the door in back to die.

Scata, christened Salvatore Scata when he was born in Brooklyn 18 years ago, was groveling in a pre-execution sell on the moment, asking that his pals be saved.

"So long Teddy," he screamed and the words could be heard in the death chamber.

In three other cages 70 feet away were Dominick Zizzo, Eugene Bruno an Sam Kimmel. They were along on the night that a bullet was shot into Esposito's head. They, too, have been saved 24 hours before by executive order.

As the fatal hour approached and Bologna, the man who fired the shot, and Di Donne, master mind of the holdup of the young subway collector, heard no word from Albany. They expressed to lawyers that they were set and to go.

Di Donne the strongest was the first. Quietly, he left Death Row in the witnesses assembled, and, without assistance walked to the chair. Then he got up. Guards who were about to strap him to the chair pushed him back into it.

"Just a minute," he said, "I've got something to say."

Then, looking at the state hook Di Donne flung out his arms. In a husky tone that could scarcely be heard he protested against the torture that minute-crossed him.

Executioner Robert Elliott was ready at the switch. Scarcely had the guards lifted their fingers from the straps than the electricity was hugging his victim.

Asks for Reporters

A witness slipped to the floor in a dead faint. Elliott kept the pressure going, his shadow making a grotesque picture across the floor.

Elliott circled his victim. It was all over for Di Donne. Then Dr. C. C. Sweet stepped on stethoscope in hand. The guards took upon Theodore's chest, the buttons popped to the floor.

"This man is dead," he said in a low voice.

Elliott came out of the switch room and buried his executioner in a basket of ice water. He egressed to the guards he was ready. It seemed like ages had passed before the signal was given.

Bologna stepped into the fatal lamp-lighted chamber. He winked and nodded back and forth. He walked around the clinic, nobody stopping him.

Bologna reeled a little as he took up a position in front of the hot seat.

"Where is the newspaper reporters?" he asked huskily.

Thirty reporters said nothing.

"You certainly made a fine mess of things," he said. "Why don't you put down what you did?"

"You called me tough Tony and all that, but I'm a good kid."

Father McCaffrey stepped up with the cross.

News Story -:- Editorial -:- Study In Sorrow

The electric chair takes another mother's son who turned killer and here, in one of the most graphic pictures of the new year, the mother bows in anguished sorrow and prayer unanswered before a radio that has just brought her the final word: "No reprieve for Theodore Di Donne." A few minutes later while Mrs. Matilda Di Donne still fingered the beads and cross of her rosary in her humble Brooklyn home, her son was put to death at Sing Sing prison, New York, for the murder of a subway coin collector during a holdup. With young Di Donne last night died Joseph "Tough Tony" Bolognia. Four others in the crime were given commutations to life imprisonment.

Experts Place Quake in Tibet

Harvard, Mass., Jan. 8 (AP)—Dr. L. Don Leet, Harvard University seismologist, said today calculations of Russian meteorologists that the epicenter of yesterday's severe earthquake might be in Tibet latitude closely with Harvard observations.

Dr. Leet said Harvard records showed that the earthquake continued for about five and a half hours beginning about 8:34 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, yesterday.

He said it ranked in intensity with the most severe earth shocks.

BOSS CAN PAY TAXES

Ruling Made on Security Levy

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—If an employer wants to help his employe Social Security taxes Treasury officials said informally today it is legal with them.

The law requires deductions from workers' pay envelopes, but it forbids employers to pay the amount unlawfully for payment. They added there would be no attempt to force the issue if an employer paid the taxes.

A Hartford, Conn., department store reported it would pay the tax for employes. This caused the question of whether the sum paid as tax for the employe would be considered an increase to his salary and therefore subject to an additional tax itself.

Treasury officials said such payments would be taxable as additional wages, but that the amount involved would be so small, for instance 15 cents on a $15 weekly salary—as to make any practical difference in total tax payments.

They hinted Congress might be asked to exempt from taxation employer tax payments for employes.

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 8—Mr. Frank Hale, on a bet, couldn't now turn around twice without falling down.

He would see spots before his eyes, vertigo would ensue. Mr. Frank Hale is around 44 years of age, slightly corpulent, and has been living easy for quite a spell.

DAMON RUNYON

This is the same Mr. Frank Hale who, in 1911, and for several years thereafter, could execute 58 complete revolutions in a minute and twelve seconds while doing a dance that he brought off the Barbary Coast in San Francisco, called the Texas Tommy.

It was the fastest dance known to what we might call the terpischorean art, and there hasn't been any faster since.

It involved the use of a female partner, in Mr. Hale's first case, a Miss Marie Tolman, and the Texas Tommy music was an old tune called "King Chanticleer," which any toddering citizen of middle age will easily recall.

Mr. Martin Beck, then the big mogul of the old Orpheum vaudeville time, brought Mr. Hale, and Miss Tolman, and another chap known as "Dutch Mike," and a Miss Stella Johnson, East from the Barbary Coast to perform the Texas Tommy for the edification of the cash customers, and the dance set the Eastern provinces agog.

Kid Hoofer on Barbary Coast

"Dutch Mike" is dead, and we had Mr. Hale cudgeling his brain over his afternoon coffee for a couple of hours the other day trying to recall Mike's last name, without success. That Mike could turn on, too, with the Texas Tommy.

The dance was originated by Mr. Hale when he was only about 16 years old, and a kid hoofer in the hot spots along the Barbary Coast, and elsewhere in San Francisco, when it was the hottest town on earth. He worked at Schiff's Cafe, among other places, and "Dutch Mike" was in the Midway.

Mr. Hale doesn't remember now just how he came to devise the Texas Tommy, but he is pretty sure he elaborated on a dance known as the St. Louis Toodle, and he is also pretty sure that this was the germ of syncopation in dancing in this country.

Ball room dancing by the sleek looking, well-mannered and mainly somewhat Latin teams that we know today, is the old Cubanola glide along with the Texas Tommy slowed down, and vastly refined and with a strong dash, also greatly purified, of another dance that Mr. Hale originated, known as the Bunny Hug.

Introduced to Young Lady

Mr. Hale had acquired something of a reputation around San Francisco with his Texas Tommy, when one night Mr. Charles de Young, one of the owners of the San Francisco Chronicle, summoned him to the Old Thalia, a cellar-and-elbow joint on the Barbary Coast, where, it appeared, Mr. de Young had a slumming party.

When Mr. Hale arrived there with his box hair cut, and boxcut coat and high-heeled shoes—the plate of fashion and the mold of hoofer form for those days—Mr. de Young introduced him to a young lady in his party, and said he wanted Mr. Frank Hale to dance the Texas Tommy with her.

"Do you know it?" Mr. Hale asked the gal.

"No," she said, "but I'd like to learn it."

So Mr. Hale took her into a corner and showed her how to dance the Texas Tommy—one, two, three, turn—and so forth. Then they stepped out on the floor together and knocked a typical Thalia assemblage cold with their performance, and the next day Mr. Hale was slightly surprised to read under big headlines in the Chronicle that he had danced with a Russian lady named Pavlowa.

She was in San Francisco at the time with Mordkin, and Mr. de Young thought it would make a nice little story for her to dance an American dance with an American dancer. Miss Pavlowa announced that she was going to take the dance back to her country, and teach it to one and all, though Mr. Hale hasn't heard that there are any considerable number of Texas Tommy dancers in Russia at this time.

Contests All Over Town

But the story made the dance the craze, and there were contests all over San Francisco in the twinkling of an eye, and Sid Grauman put Mr. Hale in the Old Empress Theater, and made a regular performer of him. And Mr. Martin Beck did the rest.

Mr. Hale and his partners went into a show called "A Modern Eve," in Chicago. Joe Santley was the star, and they had brought Victor Hollander, an eminent musician in Europe, over to lead the orchestra, and when Mr. Hale and his partner were on, Mr. Hale kept muttering to Mr. Hollander, "faster, faster, faster."

One day Mr. Hollander went back stage and said to Mr. Hale:

"But, look," he said. "Suppose some time you do not catch the girl when you are spinning her around, faster, faster. Where will she be?"

"Right on top of your head," replied Mr. Hale, and never again would Mr. Hollander enter the orchestra pit while the Texas Tommy was on.

Mr. Frank Hale stopped dancing in 1918, finishing up with George M. Cohan. He turned producer awhile and brought the Dixieland Jazz Band and its "Tiger Rag" to New York, then he went into the government revenue service. Then into business, and got wealthy.

He weighed 165 pounds when he was dancing, was young, and strong, and never smoked or drank, and that was why he could put such inordinate speed into the Texas Tommy. Now he finds it tires him somewhat just sitting down, which shows you how a fast man can slow up.

HURLEY WEIGHS BANK DEPT. OUSTERS

liquidation in his inaugural address, but there were few who knew how seriously he looked at the situation.

"Ten days ago," he explained, "I received from the banking department a full list of employees of this department and the salaries of those concerned in liquidations.

"Before the day is out I expect to have another conference with my advisors about this situation."

The governor's words were interpreted to mean that action may be taken immediately on the banks question. He declined at the time to go into the question further.

TAX APPEALS BOARD

So far as the state board of tax appeals is concerned, the new chief executive said:

"I am going to study the work of this board and note particularly its efficiency and its conduct of business. That should explain itself.

There were many reports that former Executive Councillors Hennessey and Brennan would be ousted from this tax board. The governor did not commit himself on this point.

POLICY ON PARDONS

When asked what his policy on pardons would be, Hurley said he had "very definite ideas" on the subject. A secretary he missed a request for a pardon.

The statement merely said that one member of his secretarial staff, George F. Sullivan, a lawyer of Fall River, would be "designated to review all petitions for pardons. These petitions will be reviewed with great care and a thorough investigation will follow and only such cases which have merit will be given consideration."

The Governor later began work on the state budget which, he said, he hoped to present to the legislature within two weeks.

MEETS SELECTMEN

He was also in the meantime to address the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association at Gardner auditorium.

There he paid tribute to Theodore N. Wadden, State director of accounts, and praised the financial aid this executive has given the Commonwealth.

"I don't believe in making promises," he told the selectmen, "but I'll do everything to cooperate with you. Judge me by my actions—not by my words."

In his inaugural address Hurley said: Governor Hurley had his sharply at the conditions surrounding the liquidating of the closed banks.

CALLS EXPENSE "AMAZING"

He characterized as "amazing" the fact that the cost of liquidation for 1936 was $673,942, as compared with 1935, when it was $619,470, despite the fact that about 75 per cent of the deposit liabilities had been reduced.

He also disclosed that the cost of legal services to the closed banks the last two years was more than $100,000 and for the entire period almost $1,000,000.

Further voicing his dissatisfaction, the governor said that in cases in which lawyers were appointed liquidating agents on the theory that they could perform the many legal duties incident to the work, they, in turn, retained other lawyers for routine legal matters at "tremendous expense."

FIRST APPOINTMENT

At the first session of the new executive council, the Governor made his first appointment. He named Henry J. Smith, of Brighton, Boston school committeeman, as trustee of the Boston Elevated Street Railway.

Smith fills a vacancy caused by the resignation of John V. Mahoney, the Governor's secretary. The appointment is good until June 15, 1939. The salary is $5000 a year.

The Governor also appointed his secretarial staff and those nominations, as well as that of Smith, were unanimously confirmed.

They are John V. Mahoney, chief secretary; Paul C. Ryan, Francis M. McKeown and George Sullivan, assistant secretaries; Miss Helen A. Daly, secretary; Timothy F. Kane, secretary; Frank Coughlin, chief clerk; Charles J. McDonald, messenger; Robert Hardigan and Michael Conlin, assistant messengers; Mrs. Mabel Hayes, telephone operator; Joseph Black, chauffeur.

William L. Reed at Boston was reappointed secretary to the executive council.

KELLY APPOINTMENTS

The office force originally picked by Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly, and which it was indicated might meet with opposition, was approved.

The lieutenant-governor named James T. Barker as secretary; Mary M. Reardon, of Malden as stenographer, and John Stanton as chauffeur.

Stanton is a member of the state police and was immediately assigned to his new post.

The executive council adopted an amendment to the rules of the council under which suspension of rules can take place by a "two-thirds vote instead of by a majority vote. This vote was also unanimous.

The council will hold its next meeting next Wednesday at 12 noon.

Employees of the state treasurer's office presented the governor with a plain leather upholstered arm chair.

Mansfield to See Roosevelt on Funds

Mayor Mansfield plans to confer with President Roosevelt at Washington Monday regarding funds to finance construction of a new Boston City Hall.

Presidential approval is still lacking for an application for federal funds for the project, which has been accepted by Public Works Administration officials.

G-MEN AFTER KIDNAPER; BOY MAY BE FREE

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 8 (AP)—Three automobiles filled with men believed to be Federal Bureau of Investigation agents raced through Olympia, Wash., this morning and took the road to Aberdeen, 84 miles southwest of Tacoma.

This sudden action stirred rumors a "break" had come in the kidnaping of 10-year-old Charles Mattson—possibly that the boy had been released.

The three machines, traveling rapidly, careened onto the branch of the highway leading directly toward Aberdeen and other harbor cities.

Two other automobiles, also traveling at high speed, were reported nearing Tacoma on the mountain highway leading southeast toward Mount Rainier where the drivers hurriedly conferred before the cars separated and sped away.

Observers interpreted their activity as meaning the kidnaped boy had been released. All law enforcement agencies had completely withdrawn from activity earlier in the week at the request of the boy's father. The general understanding was that they would make no moves until Charles was released.

The latest communication from the Mattson family to the kidnaper, published in the Seattle Times yesterday, indicated important developments could be expected shortly.

Mrs. Curley Pal Of Stepdaughter

By BETTY DI PESA

"First lady" for an hour, the out-going governor's wife, Mrs. James Michael Curley, is a quiet, gracious, unassuming person.

A trite portraiture perhaps, but deserving of the respect a truth at 9:30 a. m.

Perhaps a speech of her own best expresses the new Mrs. Curley.

To a half-moon circle of girl reporters, who finally won the consent of the bride of ex-Governor Curley for a brief interview, she said:

"I don't know quite what to say. I'm not used to all this, you see."

NOTE OF SINCERITY

She seemed not a little overwhelmed. And she was, by way of, I think, apologizing a little, for all previous and persistent refusals for an interview, she had now granted.

The note of sincerity in her voice was convincing, and the half-dozen feminine members of the press, who had been seeking vainly for weeks to get an interview with the lady, found themselves in a forgiving mood.

Mrs. Curley speaks in quiet, almost hushed tones.

She has a likeable air of dependence about her. More than once during the day she turned to her new daughter, Mary, and consulted with her over a problem of the moment.

AFFECTIONATE COUPLE

There was that time in the auto outside the State House while she awaited her new husband as he dispensed with his gubernatorial duties.

It was nearly time for Mr. Curley to descend the State House steps as a private citizen.

"Mary, should I get out of the car, now, dear?" she asked a little plaintively.

The feeling of affection between Mary and her step-mother was apparent.

Mary replied to the query:

"Not quite yet! You'll get wet if you leave the car now."

Mrs. Curley is a serious and forlorn. She has the bewildering quality that is positively impossible for the "20's." He wasn't for wrong who said, "Life begins at 40," one is reminded.

Post Office Broke Record in 1936

Washington, Jan. 8 (US)—The United States post office took in the largest revenue in 1936 since 1930, Postmaster General Farley announced today. But the income was still $17,000,000 short of the amount needed to meet the deficit.

The post office had a surplus of nearly $5,000,000 in 1935, but increased costs of various services created a deficit last year.

Married 27 years, Mrs. Elinor J. Gould of Cabot street, Winchester, was seeking a divorce in Reno, Nev., today.

Notice of her suit, brought on charges of cruelty, was served on Robert G. Gould, Boston man.

Dog Racing Bill

Provisions to bar dog racing in residential districts were contained in a bill filed with the Legislature by Representative Frederick H. Reinstein of Revere.

Health Head Gives 'Flu' Warning

Honorians should be on their guard against influenza, Dr. William H. Kelly, municipal health commissioner, warned today.

While there is no danger of an epidemic, Dr. Kelly said, any person who is suffering from a bad cold should go to bed immediately and call a physician.

The commissioner explained that he did not want to cause alarm, but as outbreaks of influenza usually occurred first in Chicago and then New York is experiencing a similar condition. Apparently the path is eastward, he felt.

Truck Drivers' Strike Off

Union truck drivers here today announced that their threatened general strike was definitely off, thanks to a compromise contract signed with employers.

Wage increases, amounting in many cases to as much as $4 a week, were guaranteed, leaders of the truckmen said. Minimum weekly pay was raised from $30 to $32.

The compromise was accepted by vote of 1500 members of the Truck Drivers' Union, meeting at their Harrison avenue, South End, headquarters.

BRITAIN MOVES TO BLOCK NAZI FORT IN MOROCCO

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—British cabinet ministers met today in a hurriedly-called special session to consider both German military activities across the straits from Gibraltar and the non-intervention problem in Spain itself.

Foreign Secretary Eden, called the conference at 10 Downing street after a night discussion with Prime Minister Baldwin. Baldwin will see King George VI at Sandringham over the weekend and apparent link with international developments.

Reports of German-supervised fortifications and of German, long-range guns at the Spanish smuggler port of Ceuta, Morocco—almost directly opposite Gibraltar—prompted the special parley it was understood.

The British also heard that more than 3000 armed Germans had arrived in the Spanish Moroccan zone 2000 at Ceuta.

With the great house there governing the nine British Mediterranean possessions, the court of Spain, France and Great Britain were reported hesitating on whether to be considering direct action to isolate the Spanish war.

Urgency of the quick peace plan was said to be realized by British statesmen.

Meanwhile, official circles in both England and France devoted attention to devising study of the Italian and German decision to withdraw aid to Spanish insurgents be put off.

The regime, informed sources said, threw the entire problem back into the hands of the non-intervention committee and to certain powerless to take effective action.

Observers pointed to the massing of the British home and Mediterranean fleets and the French Atlantic fleet as Spanish waters as a possible backing to stringent demands for non-intervention, should they be made.

Although the first maneuvers were described by naval authorities of both countries as routine, reports said that the massing of the British home and Mediterranean fleets and the French Atlantic fleet in Spanish waters as a possible backing to stringent demands for non-intervention, should they be made.

Although the first maneuvers were described by naval authorities of both countries as "routine," reports said that the massing of the British home and Mediterranean fleets and the French Atlantic fleet in Spanish waters as a possible backing to stringent demands for non-intervention, should they be made.

WAY THROUGH FRANCE

The mighty armada aggregating more than 400,000 tons of fighting strength, would be capable of erecting an impenetrable barrier to sea.

Left open would be the route through the Pyrenees Mountains along the France-Spanish frontier, but the French foreign office was reported studying legislation to forbid all movements into Spain without official authorization.

Before taking such drastic steps, both countries are said prone to the international repercussions. It was learned France and England hoped to find a solution in the diplomatic struggles.

France Bars German Armies in Morocco

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—French officials asserted today it was "impossible" for France to permit a report German incursion into Spanish Morocco, and said she would demand an immediate consultation of Europe's powers to halt the flow of foreign men and munitions into Spain.

Taking immediate cognizance of a report by the French Moroccan administrator to the effect Germany was conducting a large-scale military and commercial invasion in the adjacent Spanish zone, the French officials said:

"France finds it impossible to permit Germany to gain a foothold here."

At the same time authorities at the Quai D'Orsay insisted German and Italian acceptance "in principle" of a proposed ban on foreign volunteer enlistments for Spain had opened the way for a quick consultation of powers represented on the international neutrality committee.

They said France would press for such a consultation.

Duce Threatens Open Aid to Insurgent Army

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—Premier Mussolini's answer to demands for non-intervention in Spain was interpreted today by informed observers as an implied threat of outright aid to Fascist insurgents if France and Britain refuse to accept his point of view.

Italy, in a reply similar to one by Germany, agreed to bar volunteers from the Spanish civil war but, warned indirect intervention must cease as well.

Indirect intervention she pointed out, is aimed at counters French and British representations to halt the flow of aid to Spain, meant particularly financial aid and propaganda.

Rebel Warships Shell Two Loyalist Ports

Perpignan, France, Jan. 8 (AP)—Two insurgent warships bombarded the Spanish towns of Port Bou and Cadera, just south of the border, sending 40 shells into the cities today.

Residents on the French side of the border watched the shelling, which lasted more than an hour.

Both warships flew Fascist flags. One was a cruiser similar in appearance to the insurgent cruiser Canarias, the other was a destroyer.

Each fired 20 shots into the towns.

Spain Ignores Hitler Deadline on Ship Seizure

Valencia, Jan. 8 (INS)—Stormy and silently, without even deigning to reply to the German ultimatum, the loyalist Spanish government today let the deadline pass without surrendering the cargo and passengers of the German steamer Palos.

Hours after the time set three days ago by Germany—8 a. m. today—the Valencia government announced the allegedly contraband cargo of the Palos was still declared at Bilbao.

Germany, it was expected, would forthwith turn over the Aragon and Marta Junquera, Nos. 1 merchantment Reich warships seized, to the insurgents.

Contrary to the Reich's attitude that this ends the matter, the Valencia authorities plan to take the whole case of what is regarded as open German intervention in the civil war before the 27-power non-intervention commission in London.

Drastic 'Anti-War Bill' Speeded in Senate

Washington, Jan. 8 (INS)—While war-minded army, navy, foreign, congressional leaders today drove forward a bill which would authorize the President to commandeer plants in time of war and fix a ceiling for profits.

Senator Sheppard (D) Texas author of the peace move.

"This is a peace move. The bill goes hand-in-hand with neutrality legislation, makes equal the burdens of war for all, and gives special profits and privileges to none. This will prevent private interests from having any real incentive to insist on war."

The proposed law is favored in the American legion. Sheppard said it fitted with President Roosevelt's program to curb profits and assist industry's aid in an emergency.

PRESIDENT'S POWER

1—Impose a 95 per cent tax on "all income" above the previous three-year period.

2—Proclaim it unlawful to buy, sell or otherwise contract for "any article or thing" enumerated in a proclamation at a "higher rate, rent, price or commission than was in effect" at a date to be determined by the President.

3—Determine and publicly proclaim "the material resources, industrial organizations and public services over which government control, including requisitioning materials for use or resale by the government, shall then be necessary."

DRAFTS ALL 21 TO 31

4—Draft into military service "such members of the unorganized militia between the ages of 21 and 31 as he deems necessary."

5—Register all or any class of persons engaged in the management or control of any industry and call them to the service of the government "as civilians for the duration of the war under such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe."

6—License all industry and business for government regulation or control and provide penalties for those who "engage in business without such licenses."

7—Determine what industries or businesses shall have priority in filling orders for the government or private purchasers.

It also embraces some of the war-profits and mobilization plan formulated by the old Senate munitions committee.

SEAMEN FIGHT RECRUITING

While their leaders attended a peace parley with ship owners in New York today, marine strikers here organized vigorous opposition to alleged recruiting of idle Boston seamen for service with the Spanish Loyalist army.

According to the strikers, their ranks have already been depleted by Spanish agents who have advanced cash to prospective Madrid army recruits, signing them up for voluntary enlistment and then taking them to New York to await transportation overseas.

In at least one instance, Boston's striking seamen claimed today, a striking member of their group was entertained at a drinking party, then was persuaded to put his signature on a contract to serve with Spain's Red army.

A squad of 30 Boston recruits for the Spanish military service left this city Wednesday, the marine strikers said.

British Girl, 17, Slain in Peiping

Peiping, China, Jan. 8 (AP)—The mutilated body of Pamela Werner, 17-year-old daughter of a British resident at Peiping, was found today in a ditch near the southern edge of the foreign settlement.

Police believed Miss Werner had been robbed and then slain. Her body then had been attacked by a pack of wild dogs, they said.

Protest Frank Ouster:

La Follette Deaf To Student Plea

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8 (AP)—Governor Philip F. La Follette, addressing 1000 striking students who invaded his offices today, refused to promise consideration of their demands for reinstatement of Dr. Glenn Frank to the University of Wisconsin presidency.

The students, estimated at nearly 1500 by executive assistants, left the university campus in the governor's office after they had been harangued by speakers, including a young woman, a senior graduate, who asked:

"Are you going to stand by like a group of moral cowards?"

Police Called

The students, headed by much popular, ex-executive committee Governor La Follette called upon the Madison police department for help.

Chester Charles Dow, white-haired secretary of the Governor, was barricaded in his office to keep the students out.

Police Chief William McCormick arrived with 12 officers. With much shouting and commotion they cleared all of the demonstrators out of the state house and a committee of nine was admitted to see the Governor.

Invade Classes

Earlier two hundred University of Wisconsin students rushed through Bascom Hall on the campus in order, shouting for the return of Dr. Glenn Frank, who was dismissed by the board of regents last night by the controlling Progressive vote on the board of regents.

Young men and girls joined in a "snake dance" through the lecture rooms of the old building which houses the university administrative offices and most of the lecture rooms of the College of Letters and Science.

Some of the usual pranks, ranging from one building to another.

The students invaded classrooms appealing to other students to join them.

5 WOMEN WIN DIVORCES

Five women were granted uncontested decrees in additional probate court by Judge John C. Leggat today, four charging cruelty and one desertion.

Those who said they were beaten by their husbands were: Mrs. Lillian Hester of Arlington, divorced from Harold of Waltham; Mrs. Madeline Keith of Beverly, divorced from Lawrence of Campridge; Mrs. Jessie Ware of Lexington, divorced from Arthur of Cambridge, and Mrs. Minnie MacSkeen of Malden, divorced from Ralph, of Somerville.

Mrs. Agnes MacAllister of Medford testified she has not seen her husband, William, since 1929.

$250,000 FISKE WILL FILED

Disposing of his estate of $250,000, the will of Arthur D. Fiske of Sharon was filed today in Dedham probate court.

The will provides for a $75,000 trust fund for his widow, Elizabeth Harwood Fiske, and the income from the estate of his first wife, Elizabeth Harwood Fiske. The principal of the trust will be divided among all children.

The residue of his estate is left outright to Mrs. Fiske.

Edward's Retreat Attracts Royalty

Vienna, Jan. 8 (INS)—While the Duke of Windsor tramps through the snows on a hiking tour this winter the Austrian Alps will be the meeting place for the royalty of Europe, it was learned today.

Visitors will include the Dukes of Kent and Gloucester, ex-King Alfonso of Spain, Ferdinand of Bulgaria, Marie of Rumania, Wilhelmina of Holland and Crown Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland.

3 Men Perish In Burning Shack

Great Falls, Jan. 8 (INS)—Three men, believed to be Indians, perished in a fire which destroyed a log cabin on the banks of Dutch Creek, near here.

In the ruins of their weekend shack, Deputy Sheriff Ed Hendricks of Fort Belknap found the remains of two bodies, one of which had been identified by a watch and two bottles that had been carried by the victims in their coats, known as "smoke."

President Mum On New Cabinet

Washington, Jan. 8 (INS)—President Roosevelt was asked today at his press conference whether he would say anything about the makeup of his "second-term" Cabinet.

"No," he replied.

Young Roosevelt Out, Hurries To Fiancee in Capital

nearer twenty, I guess," he replied.

And what about his wedding plans now?

"Miss du Pont's plans, and mine, of course, are not changed. We'll be married in June, but the date hasn't been set definitely," he answered. "After all, that's the bride's privilege."

And what was he going to do right now?

FIANCEE TO MEET HIM

"I'm heading for Washington, but I'm coming back to Cambridge as soon as I can. I'll probably stay in Washington for two or three days. I don't know just when I'll leave there. That depends on the family and on my condition."

And Miss du Pont?

"Well, yes. She's going to meet me on the train. I think she'll get on at Wilmington and go along to Washington with me."

Why was he in such a hurry to get back to Cambridge? And what about that Florida trip?

"I want to get back to Harvard to do the April make-ups. I'm worried about my studies. Wouldn't you be, after all these weeks in the hospital? I want to be ready for the divisional in May, don't you see—"

Reporters chuckled. Now, he hadn't explained about Florida. He did explain.

"After the date is decided, I'll go to Florida for a picking. I'm really going to ——, but I don't want it broadcast. So, don't print that, will you?"

He was assured that the newspaper would keep it a secret.

"You know, about school," he explained without prompting, "I would like to have gone in for honors at Harvard, but I don't know whether I can now. There's a thesis, as well as other things, to consider."

After the wedding, the diplomat-patient said, he hadn't decided what he would do. He might plan to go to Harvard Law School. He might go to some other law school. He doesn't going directly to work, because he wanted to complete his studies.

NO DU PONT JOB FOR HIM

"And you don't think you'll take a job in the du Pont factories like the other sons-in-law do?" a reporter suggested.

"No," he replied. And that "no" was very emphatic.

Now about his condition again? Would he have to rest a while?

"Well," he considered, "the doctors think, maybe I might do limit myself to a single sculls, but I still have hopes of going out for the varsity crew.

"And say, now," he added, "I'm afraid I'll have to go to going, too. Don't you think that's enough?"

"How about the pictures?" all the cameramen, including a movie photographer, chorused.

IN MANY POSES

"Fair enough. Five minutes," young F. D. responded.

So the shutters clicked and the cameramen looked very industrious, and about 150 curious persons who had gathered in this time noised on. Windows and doors of the hospital were filled with patients, nurses, janitors and other citizens.

The object of all these attentions stood in the five minutes. Then he began to look worried.

"How about it?" he objected. "No walkout hurryin gup? I can't stand it much longer, you know. I've been in the hospital for a long stretch and the knees are getting weak."

PRESIDENT'S DOCTOR THERE

So after just one more, the cameramen retreated to the street.

The Roosevelt brothers stepped into John's coupe and sped off in the South Station to board the Senator. Captain Ross McIntyre, the President's personal physician, followed in another machine.

F. D. jr. was clad in a gray felt hat, gray topcoat and dark suit, with a white puff about his throat. He had on his feet a pair of black brogues that had arrived in a taxicab only a few minutes before he left the hospital.

The same taxicab took to the hotel five suitcases and two boxes of Christmas plants that had been sent to the hospital—mostly Jerusalem cherry trees and poinsettias.

ROOSEVELT, JR. JOHN ROOSEVELT

POND FIGHTS FOR OFFICE

George E. Pond of Greenfield today brought a writ of mandamus to the state supreme court to compel the state board of tax appeals to reinstate him as its chairman.

Governor Curley removed Pond from his office as chairman of the board and appointed Morton H. Burdick of Springfield, former executive councilor from acting as clerk.

In the legal proceedings Pond says the writ was issued by Governor Curley November 20, 1936, at an annual salary of $4200.

The petition states further that on December 28, 1936, John J. Mahoney, Abraham G. Weiner and H. H. Stapleton were purported to have dismissed Pond and elected themselves.

Pond claims that the action was illegal, inasmuch as a quorum of the constituted members were not present.

CITY HALL HAS FIRE SCARE

Twenty feet of smouldering wood ceiling to withstand heat from a blaze which broke out in the Newton City Hall today resulted in a fire scare throughout the building.

Firemen, although summoned by an alarm, declared the building might have been destroyed if the fire occurred during the night.

The small fire of burning wood throughout the first three floors led to the discovery of the charred wood under the flooring of the municipal building department.

William Glennon, custodian, and Carl Schultz, assistant, ripped up the floor of Room 1.

Work in offices on the three floors was suspended for 35 minutes.

Haverhill Girl, Woman Missing

Mystery, Jan. 8—The second mysterious disappearance in two days was reported to the Haverhill police today when Miss Dorothy Chaisson of 17 fish street reported her daughter, Edna, 17, missing since Sunday.

Police also have been requested to search for Mrs. Frances Howard, 42, of 284 Water street, Haverhill, who was reported missing since she went for a walk Sunday afternoon.

Investigators said the girl and Mrs. Howard knew each other but were not close friends.

$1000 Newton Loot Back in Day Home

An extraordinary set of wire stolen, estimated valued at $1000, was replaced in a canister in the home of Reginald H. Day, at 124 Central street, Auburndale, Newton, police reported today.

The Day family went away for a week's vacation. The returned to find none the following day to learn that the Day home also had been visited. The silverware had been returned.

A Big Hand

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 8 (AP)—Marvin Marshall battled his way to the 115-pound championship in the Golden Gloves tournament.

His classmates applauded him until their finger joints ached. But Marvin couldn't answer. His hands were gloved. So he just smiled and tore into his opponent.

Marvin and his supporters are from the State School for Deaf Mutes.

'Thin, But I'm Feeling Fine!'

"I Gained Every Bottle I Took"

says Mrs. A. J. Manbusky, 71 Walnut St., Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

"I was very nervous and lost all my pep. I didn't even feel like talking to anyone. My three children would make me so nervous that I didn't know what to do. Since taking your wonderful Vegetable Compound I am a new woman. My sister told me about it and I gained every bottle I took. I have a good appetite and sleep well. My husband says he is glad I am feeling so good and he hopes I continue taking it. I recommend it to every girl and woman who suffers as I did. I say, 'Try it once and you won't be without it'."

100,000 IDLE BY NIGHTFALL IN AUTO WAR

Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, was telling newsmen:

"I don't thing we are any nearer negotiations than we were when we started conferences with the governor."

100,000 OUT BY NIGHT

General Motors estimated more than 76,000 of its factory employees were idle because of the U. A. W. A. strikes; parts shortages or excess supply of products which other corporation units were unable to use.

Expected shutdown at Buick and Chevrolet plants in Flint, Mich., and a Chevrolet parts plant at Bay City will affect 25,000 workers by nightfall.

General Motors announced that a "sit-down" strike by 300 employes of the Cadillac Motor Car Company left 4000 workers idle. The union claimed most of the day force of 4000 men participated in the strike.

Another "sit-down" in the Michigan Tool Company plant here, not a General Motors unit, affected 200 employes. It was called by the Mechanics Educational Society of America.

At Flint, two U. A. W. A. members arrested late Thursday during a disturbance in front of the Chevrolet motor company plant stood mute today at their arraignment on charges of committing a breach of the peace. They were released on $200 bond each pending a hearing February 17.

Police dispersed with a threat of tear gas a crowd of union men who demonstrated at Flint police headquarters last night and 75 who went to the police station this morning, required to union headquarters when officers asked them to refrain from any demonstrations.

In Washington, John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization with which the U. A. W. A. is affiliated, conferred with Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of Labor, on the General Motors strike.

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 8 (AP)—A shutdown of General Motors factories in Canada was reported today as an imminent possibility unless strikes paralyzing the United States automobile industry are settled by the end of the month.

About 8000 men would be affected.

Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., declared plants at St. Catherine, Allisville and Oshawa faced complete suspension. Assembly plants, he said, would be able to continue production on a restricted scale for the rest of January. Then he said, a slowdown throughout Canada would be unavoidable unless the Fisher body plant in Cleveland replenishes supplies of body metals.

Shortages of body supplies, Carmichael said, were the greatest danger to the Canadian factories.

DOUBLE DEATH VERDICT UPSET BY PROFESSOR

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 8 (USP)—State police were confronted with new and startling theory today in the case of Mrs. Ruth Shaw, whose slain body was found in Guilford last October as a result of tests made by a Yale professor.

Previously, it was believed that Frank Smith, 22, and Marie Ferri, 22, both of New Haven, who were found dead in the former's locked automobile, died of carbon monoxide poisoning, but Professor Yandell Henderson of Yale argues otherwise.

An autopsy here showed both died of homicide, poisoning and State Police Lieutenant Willard E. Hinkley reported an accidental death ensued about 45 minutes after the pair was stopped to permit the pair to get some fresh air. Windows in the car were found open and police say this eliminated the suicide theory.

Professor Henderson yesterday took the auto to the Sheffield chemical laboratory, spent 30 minutes in the closed car with the engine running, examined the air inside and reported that there was no more poison inside than could be found in one puff of a cigarette.

The professor did not deny that Smith and Miss Ferri died from carbon monoxide. He did, however, report that it was impossible for the two to have died in such a manner in the car in which they were found. In finding it natural the theory that the couple might have died suicides, the bodies driven to Guilford, and abandoned.

State police reported they still regard the deaths as accidental. It would check up on the new theory.

CHARITY DRIVE PLEA TO P. O.

More than 7000 postal employes of 25 towns, Boston cities and areas will be urged by Postmaster Victor P. Tierce of Boston to give a day's pay as their share in the Greater Boston Community Fund drive, Jan. 18-22.

Last year a total of $58,000 was donated by federal employes in this district, and since then has contributed $26,000 of the total.

At a meeting with the superintendents and foremen in the postal building, Tierce insisted that the donations of employes be kept entirely secret. The drive will cover a six-month period.

Hot Saddle' Racket Stings Film Folks

Hollywood, Jan. 8 (AP)—Film folk, a "hot saddle" racket was battling secret underground today after it was exposed by reporters and police.

Sheriff's deputies and investigators for the State Horse Racing Board said prisoners were shown a photograph of a horse with a dummy rider in the saddle of a standard horse and used feedback wires to control the movable aspect.

Held in $10,000 As Idaho Fugitive

Frank A. Alden, 36, address unknown, pleaded guilty to a charge of being a fugitive from justice in Dedham, district court today after his suggestions allegedly revealed he was wanted in Idaho for escaping from state prison in 1934.

He allegedly admitted he escaped from the Idaho prison while serving a life imprisonment sentence.

Judge Clifford B. Swallow ordered him held in $10,000 while awaiting the arrival of Idaho police.

Washington Times In Record Ad Gain

Washington, Jan. 8 (USP)—For the second consecutive year the Washington Times reports the highest advertising gain for any one-day newspaper in the United States, according to a statement issued today by C. Dorsey Wardell, executive publisher. The Times gain was 2,211,160 lines.

BIRTHDAY BALL

Clubs, Theaters to Lend Talent

Headliners of stage and screen are ready to do their bit for the President's birthday ball, to be held in Garden January 29 as Mayor Mansfield announced today that all clubs and theaters are ready to supply all available talent.

A conference, held today by Mayor Mansfield and Chairman Joseph A. Maynard with representatives of theaters and night clubs resulted in an agreement whereby the arrangements of the various amusement centers will be handled by a committee for the birthday ball.

A spot of the proceeds has been set by the conference committee and the New England unit hopes to supply a large slice of the amount.

Seventy-six cots in the New England hospital for infantile paralysis, Canton, Mass., will be donated to the ball by the committee on infantile paralysis, Inc.

Tickets are $1 and may be obtained at committee headquarters at 258 Washington street.

National Colors For Roosevelt Ball

New York, Jan. 8 (USP)—The national colors, red, white and blue, were chosen today as the color scheme for the birthday balls honoring President Roosevelt on January 30.

These colors will decorate 5000 ballrooms in as many cities all over the country.

Women guests will be asked to incorporate them in their costumes in a white gown, for instance, with red and blue accessories.

Merchants will be expected to trim their windows in the same colors for the week beginning January 25.

The proceeds of the balls, as in past years, go to help sufferers from infantile paralysis.

Ann Nagel Gets Lead in Rush Film

ANNE NAGEL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Hollywood, Jan. 8—(Universal Service)—Los Angeles Jan. 8—Anne Nagel, who so suddenly and cruelly was made a widow by Ross Alexander's tragic death, will immediately be put into the lead in "Start High Tomorrow" by Jack Warner.

Unfortunately, young Alexander who made a large salary saved nothing and when he died he left only a meager $200—not enough to bury him—and a much involved estate with lots of debts.

Miss Nagel, under contract to Warner's, is an accomplished young actress and as of a meeting attended by Harry Warner and Hal Wallis, it was decided to rush "Start Tomorrow" into production as a means of helping the unfortunate bride and widow to forget her tragedy.

The story is by Lucy Ward and J. D. Graham and will be directed by Brenda Barnes.

Dick Purcell, Warner stock player, is elevated to the male lead opposite Miss Nagel.

Shot Ends Career Of a Jekyll-Hyde

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 8 (AP)—A fatal bullet wound punctuated the final chapter today in the strange life of Harry Linton Butler, one-time real estate broker and Harry Linton Butler, suspected bank robber.

"I am glad he was killed," said his 80 year-old mother, Mrs. S. B. Sullivan. "I would rather see him dead than behind prison bars."

Butler, a former president of the Pasadena Realty Board, was shot to death yesterday when he drew a pistol from his pocket. Detective Robert O'Rourke reported, as officers searched him at the conference of a trustee of the Bank of America.

O'Rourke said Butler's fingerprints tallied with those a robber left at the bank when it was robbed of $19,000 on March 11, 1935.

Officers were summoned by bank employes who reported Butler was acting strangely outside.

O'Rourke said he found a note on the dead man addressed to his wife. Mrs. Butler, saying "In the event I die, please forgive me."

Kiss-Ban Gives Boy His Liberty

New York, Jan. 8 (USP)—Ray Kimino, 25, is at liberty today, but he must not kiss any more strange girls for a year, at least.

That was the stipulation made by Magistrate Rule as he put young Kimino on probation. Kimino had pleaded guilty to a charge that he tried to steal a kiss from a 14-year-old girl.

Grace Moore Ill, Cancels Concerts

New York, Jan. 8—Grace Moore, operatic star, today cancelled her engagements at the Metropolitan because of influenza. It was announced that Miss Moore is on the west coast at present.

SUSPECT HELD IN KENNEDY GEM THEFT

Arrest of a Boston man and imminent capture of four others in connection with the $125,000 jewel robbery last November, at the Smithtown home of Wilson T. Kennedy, prominent Boston merchant, was revealed today.

Accused only as a suspicious person, the arrested man was arraigned in Westboro district court and, by his own agreement, was held for 24 hours, in custody of State Detective William J. McCarthy.

Illness of Mrs. Kennedy was bravely tried to talk the robbers out of their plot on the night they invaded her home, when only she and a maid were present, delayed an attempt at identification of the prisoner.

SAYS HE'S INNOCENT

Pending further developments the name of the prisoner was withheld.

According to state police he asked to be taken to the Kennedy home so that she could view him, but Detective McCarthy said:

"We want to be fair about this. You are entitled to be placed in a lineup."

"I don't care about a lineup. I'm innocent and she'll never recognize me as one of those robbers," the prisoner replied, it was said.

State police detectives, under leadership of Captain John F. Stokes made the arrest at the man's home on West Newton street late last night.

Officers are watching four other houses and expect it was planned to round up a gang that has engineered numerous big gem robberies in the east.

MRS. KENNEDY ILL

Recovery of the loot from the Kennedy home is now hinged on. The authorities have received information concerning some attempts of the robber gang to dispose of the gems through the usual underworld "fences."

A "big shot" racketeer living in Boston and conducting several illicit enterprises here is under suspicion of being involved with the gang that robbed Mrs. Kennedy after binding her and gagging her mouth, it was learned.

Mrs. Kennedy this noon said Detective McCarthy also would try to get to the Kennedy home tomorrow to look at the prisoner if the weather cleared. She has been ill for a week with grippe.

"If he's one of the men, I'll know him if I can hear him talk," she said.

Police are working on the theory that their captives was the leader

Friend of British Duke

Mrs. William Allen, the former Paula Gellibrand and ex-London mannequin, is the latest beauty to cause an "upheaval" among the royal family of England. She is said to be responsible for the Duke of Kent, youngest and favorite brother of former King Edward, being called to task by his mother, Queen Mary, because of his friendship with her.

ABC OVERRULES WALTHAM ON LICENSE BAN

The State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission today overruled the Waltham licensing board and ordered renewal of the permit of the Cottage Crest Tearoom, Trapelo road, Waltham, over protests of officials of the Metropolitan State Hospital.

Refusal of a permit for the tearoom was voted by the Waltham board after Dr. Sumner Remick, superintendent of the nearby hospital, asserted patients had been served liquor in the place.

Miss Anna Manion, secretary of the hospital trustees, claimed that nurses became intoxicated in the tearoom and were dismissed.

3 Women Witness Gas Execution

Florence, Ariz., Jan. 8 (AP)—Frank Duarte, Mexican youth, was executed in the lethal gas chamber in the state penitentiary here today for the murder of C. W. Johnson, Casa Grande merchant.

Thirty-one persons including three women witnessed the execution.

CAPITOL LIKES PRESIDENT'S VISITS

EVEN ENEMIES GLAD TO SEE HIM

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

Washington, Jan. 8—The appearance of President Roosevelt before Congress is always a pleasant and agreeable event at the Capitol.

There is a friendliness about its that was lacking when Woodrow Wilson received the custom after many years of disuse.

His visits there, to address the statesmen after the manner of a professor in his classroom, were never well received outside his own party, and enthusiasm was by no means complete within it.

Theodore Roosevelt could not have done what his namesake and relative has done in spreading goodness and light under the dome.

TEDDY NOT POPULAR

There was a time, even what compares to the present era of high controversy, when T. R. was jamming his railroad rate bill through, and was obliged to employ Democratic leaders to accomplish his purpose, when his personal appearance before the gentlemen of Congress would have occasioned a near riot—on the Senate side.

Nothing could have been more cordial than Mr. Roosevelt's reception on Wednesday. Even his political opponents—what few of them still remain—seemed genuinely glad to see him, without partisanship or rancor.

And the President responded to the sympathy of his audience like one of Alf Landon's sunflowers, opening to the morning beams. He was in great form.

DOESN'T WORRY

The President is a striking illustration of the theory that it is worry, and not hard work, which puts men in their graves. He does not worry. Nearly four years had passed since Mr. Roosevelt had first stood before Senate and House in joint session, in March, 1933.

The passing years seemed to have touched him only gently. The Congress on Wednesday found the President at his very prime. The bald spot on the crown of his head, about the size of four bits four years ago, now could be covered perhaps by a silver dollar, and a few dimes.

ALIMONY LOST OVER DOUBT OF DEATH

Because she was unable to prove that her first husband, whom she has not seen for 20 years, was dead, Mrs. Mary M. Cassin, of Everett, can no longer receive the $10 weekly alimony which her divorced second husband was paying.

This ruling was made by Judge John C. Leggat in Middlesex Probate court to conclude one of the oddest cases which has ever been presented there.

Before her marriage in 1927 to Officer John F. Cassin of the Everett police, she had been the wife of William J. Donovan, who disappeared 20 years ago.

In 1934 she divorced Cassin and was given $10 weekly alimony.

Cassin petitioned for modification and annulment of the marriage on the ground he had information her former husband was still alive several months ago.

Efforts were made to prove Donovan was dead but in court it was admitted no substantial evidence had been obtained. Judge Leggat then revoked the alimony decree.

Trust Fund Fight Of Actor Waits May Yohe Move

Upon May Yohe, once darling of the American stage now living a secluded life in Dorchester as the wife of John Sinclair today depended the next move in the fight of Robert E. Thomas, 28-year-old actor, for a $300,000 trust fund in New York.

Thomas claims he is the son of the former actress and her third husband, Putnam Strong, son of a former New York mayor, who was left the trust fund by his mother, and that upon Strong's death he is entitled to it.

Before a New York referee it was conceded that Thomas, adopted by Mrs. Anna Thomas when a baby, was the son of May Yohe but Strong had denied he ever had a son.

Thomas' attorney was expected to get in touch with the now Mrs. Smith here today and attempt to have her shed further light on the questioned parentage.

The husband of the former stage beauty is the brother of Jan Christian Smuts, Boer War hero.

3 BOYS SEIZED IN STOLEN CAR

Three South Boston boys were captured by Policemen John Gately and Arthur Reeves of the South Boston station after they allegedly jumped from a stolen auto and fled. Three shots were fired by the pursuing officers.

The boys were to be arraigned in the juvenile session of South Boston court on charges of delinquency and several auto violations.

The machine, the property of Albert W. Marcon of Union street, Framingham, was stolen from Washington street in downtown Boston.

DENIES DIVORCE FOR INSANITY

Appeal will be made to the Supreme Court from the ruling of Judge John C. Leggat, in Middlesex Probate Court, that Richard C. McLeod, Newtonville carpenter, cannot divorce his wife, insane, according to testimony, since 1929.

It was brought out in court that the wife became insane after the birth of their daughter, Priscilla, seven years ago and has since been confined at Westboro State Hospital.

Judge Leggat ruled there was nothing he could do under the law which states insanity is not a ground for divorce unless it was present at the time of the marriage.

Cell Death Probe Ordered by Fallon

Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon ordered an investigation today of the death of Mortimer Keating, 48, of Paris street, East Boston, who allegedly hanged himself in a cell at the East Boston station house.

Keating had been arrested on a charge of drunkenness. He committed suicide, police said, using his shirt as a noose.

Just Like That

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 8 (AP)—Bill Taylor, former pitcher for the Philadelphia Nationals, drove up to his favorite drugstore, went inside, and talked to his friends of his duck-hunting prowess.

Extending his left hand toward the door he said:

"So I lifted the gun like this and—bang!"

A sparrow, flying outside, hit a wire and fell dead on the pavement.

PRESIDENT'S BUDGET ASKS $790,000,000 FOR RELIEF

BALANCED BUDGET PLEA VOICED BY EXECUTIVE

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress follows in part:

PART I

The programs inaugurated during the last four years to combat the depression and to initiate many pending reforms have cost large sums of money. Many of these have been of necessity financed by borrowing and their cost, we have not sought to conceal from the people. Even so, we have had no hesitancy in meeting these costs. We shall soon be reaping the full benefits of those programs, and shall have at the same time a balanced budget, with which to meet good times and to provide for reduction of the public debt.

The fiscal needs of the Federal Government for these purposes have been formulated with two objectives in mind: first was to provide sufficient funds to relieve the distress of life to the maximum by providing greater employment and purchasing power; the second was to bring about a more balanced use of our productive capacity, and to increase the national income by restoring it on a wider basis of prosperity. Our second was to gain new knowledge as to the extent to which the American people finds these objectives can be accomplished under a sound financial policy.

Experience has demonstrated that each year since 1933 a normal improvement over the preceding year has occurred in our national income. Normally this has been reflected in increasing Industrial production, factory payrolls and farm prices have responded readily. I

These gains make it possible to reduce for the fiscal year 1938 many expenditures of the federal government, and to that extent the promise made necessary. Although we must continue to spend substantial sums to provide work for those whom industry has not yet absorbed, the 1938 budget is in balance. And except for definite reduction of $401,315,000, it will remain in balance even if bills in them are enacted additional expenditures of as much as $1,507,122,000 for recovery and relief. We expect, moreover, if improvement in economic conditions continues, that the present ratio to be able to attain in 1938 a complete balanced budget, with sufficient revenue for the statutory requirements for debt reduction.

Funds for CCC Camps—as at Tamsworth, N. H.

Lasting Benefits

In carrying out this policy, the American people are obtaining lasting benefits.

Economic protection of the aged and physically handicapped is being provided through the operations of the Social Security Act. Investors in securities are being given a large measure of protection by the Securities and Exchange Act. The corporate securities that have been retired and refinanced are now able to finance its long-term requirements on a favorable basis. The use of labor resources in the Tennessee Valley, the Mississippi drainage basin, the Columbia Basin, and the Missouri River Basin, the rehabilitation of the National Labor Relations Act, and the Bituminous Coal Act. Had it not been for the installation of these types the total revenues received during the fiscal year 1936 would have exceeded the estimate established a year ago by $162,000,000.

The collection of taxes on railroads and their employes estimated at $700,000,000, has been exceeded by $30,988,000, and realization upon assets, $31,830,000, an increase of $62,818,000.

The collection of taxes levied under the Social Security Act and the Railroad Retirement Act and the Bituminous Coal Act, which are dedicated to special purposes, have been more than was estimated. Receipts from processing taxes are expected to yield $2,372,900,000, or $946,325,000 more than was estimated from the basis of

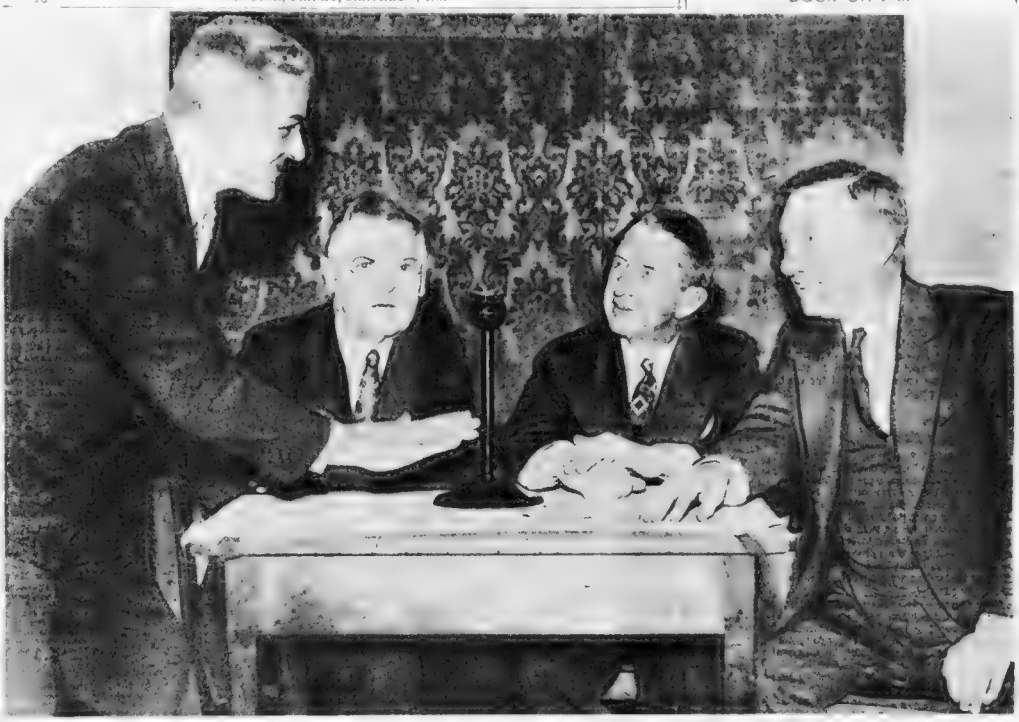
Sports Parade Puts Hoey Back on Air



AUSTEN LAKE BOB QUINN EDDIE COLLINS FRED HOEY

FRED HOEY returned to the air last night in a "Sports Parade" broadcast sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser. Hoey's return was hailed by the sounds of listeners as he interviewed Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, and Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, over the ether. Hoey was presented by Austen Lake, Boston American columnist. Hoey's return to the air was a forerunner to his return to newspaper writing. He will have a baseball column in the next issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Here is Austen Lake calling the broadcast "safe" after the "Sports Parade" went on the air.

COTTON OUTLOOK

N. E. Mills OFF TO GOOD '37 Start

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

New England cotton mills entered 1937 in a better position than at any time in the last ten years. This applies equally to orders on hand and the outlook for profits.

It is pointed out by such impartial observers as Dun & Bradstreet that consumption of raw cotton has been dominating factor in the textile industry. Consumption, as a result, is more important than the buying of finished goods has kept pace.

At present the cotton market is firm and the call for finished goods is active, yet realized prices are lower than prevailed a year ago. The textile industry in New England does not realize that it alone, however, wrestles and the worldwide are considered to be in the same boat. Textile stocks only are financed goods prices strong, but efforts are being made by the firm cotton factors to take advantage of the knowledge that industries point to an increase in consumption at the same time the fact that stocks are from 15 to 30 per cent below a year ago creates a situation that is seeking by big buyers.

The crude oil market has been subject to many conflicting reports of late. Some leading manufacturers while admitting business behind schedule, would not create the impression that the industries are going into a tailspin. Naturally this created some confusion in the minds of investors and speculators in the securities of oil group. However, the general tendency of oil shares has been to work somewhat higher. Many keen students believe that the statistical position of crude oil is as strong at the moment that higher prices cannot be avoided and market action bears them out. Even though some bearish reports have been issued, the development we are inclined to the idea oil and oil shares are headed toward better levels.

Notebook: There is a good deal of gossip regarding the earnings of Deere & Co. for the fiscal year ended October 31, 1936 . . . Nothing to wonder reliable has come to hand . . . Although, as the second largest supplier of farm equipment, we think it obtained its share of the business and should as a consequence report an income gain fairly well in excess of that reported in the previous fiscal year . . . After deducting non-recurring loss deductions, Irving Air Chute should show about $1.45 per share for 1936 . . . This year at least $2 is expected, but a good part of the company's business depends on foreign sources . . . Which tends to confuse the outlook.

Under the gain tendencies of the long depressed utilities, which seem to be now in the making, the stock market is threatening to smash the down trend of recent months . . . Bankers Brokerage Co. notes that despite the bullish action, and even though the down trend appears broken, there are many particularly industrials and rails, which still remain within the sidewise path bounded by the levels of September and October . . . December lows . . . Such narrowness is considered in part due to the assumption that until this area is pushed by one side or the other in any sense it will not be safe to assume that a new phase of the speculative is under way.

Boardroom Briefs: Our public thinks it has got over-invested has called for concentration in three groups for many weeks . . . Fortunately those three are: Utilities and aircrafts . . . And the first two have done better than hold their own so we need not have any regrets . . . As for the shorter term positions we noted motors, oils and stocks here early this week for traders, even though we did not take them into our hypothetical position because of a desire to remain 90 per cent liquid . . . In regard to steels and motors traders should be wary lest they over-ride their moves . . . Which appear to us at this stage to be nothing more than ordinary technical rearrangements. Utilities are buy on dips.

28 TONS OF GOLD Arrives in U. S.

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 8 (1937)—The first large gold shipment of the year arrived here today from Peruvian ports, totaling 28 tons of the previous week, valued at $15,000,000.

All the gold came from England, except $1,500,000 worth, dispatched from Belgium.

ZINC STOCKS Smallest in Years

Domestic stocks of zinc, all grades, at the close of 1936 amounted to less than one month's supply at the present rate of consumption. Stocks totaled 44,756 tons, which compares with 208,000 tons at the end of 59,823 tons, according to American Zinc Institute, Inc. Stocks are the lowest since at least 1920, while December shipments were the largest for any month in the past 8½ years.

When it is remembered that of total stocks, approximately 10,000 to 15,000 tons are considered necessary running supplies, it is apparent that zinc stocks have been reduced to practically the irreducible minimum.

WHEAT IMPORTS Up Sharply

Imports of wheat from Canada for consumption in the week ended January 2, were more than double the corresponding week a year ago, and almost six times the preceding week, according to the Commerce Department. Imports in the week ended January 2 were 712,000 bushels, against 331,000 bushels a year ago, and 126,000 bushels in the week ended Dec. 26, 1936.

For the period June 29 1936 to Jan. 2, 1937, imports were 22,387,000 bushels, against 18,441,000 bushels during the corresponding period a year ago.

STOCK Prices UP

AUTO, STEEL SHARES OFF

New York, Jan. 8—Selected stocks resumed the upswing in today's market, many climbing fractions to a point and several much more.

The activity was pronounced in the forenoon, with the ticker tape frequently behind. A turnover of 800,000 shares was recorded in the first hour. Near the fourth period, however, the activity dwindled appreciably.

Motors and steels were among the few on the selling side. Strikes in Detroit and federal conciliators, though, were exerting strong efforts to bring about negotiations between the unions and employers officials. At the same time the major automobile maker announced world sales in December were the largest on record.

Aircraft shares led the forward tilt as military and private buying pushed the aviation factories to the limit and the chief executive recommended increased expenditures for both army and navy forces. Wright Aeronautical was up about 7 points at the best. Lesser gainers included Douglas, Curtiss-Wright, Boeing and Curtiss-Wright.

Among others pointing higher were Allegheny, Kennecott, Inspiration, Miami, Calumet & Hecla, Spiegel Inc., (formerly Spiegel May Stern), Montgomery Ward, U. S. Pipe & Foundry, Canadian, Western Union, Standard Gas, Stone & Webster, International Paper & Power, du Pont, Procter & Gamble, Celanese, Barnsdall, Texas Corp., Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Budd Mfg., Barber Co., Newport Industries, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, J. I. Case and Gillette.

Backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, General Electric, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, American Locomotive, Standard Oil of N. J. and General Electric.

One block of 30,000 shares of Continental Baking "B" changed hands at the same price before the final quotation. The "A" stock moved up substantially along with Ward Baking "A."

Timely Items

While labor upsets and congressional programs held most of the attention in the board rooms business news received its share of study.

Holders of merchandising shares noted the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet which found trade following a somewhat normal course after the pre-holiday burst of buying.

The agency estimated retail sales for the week at from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of the same 1936 period, but pointed out industrial progress had suffered because of strikes and shutdowns and the unionization struggle in the automobile field.

Hedging to equipment shares was the testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission indicating heavy demand for replacements by the railroads probably would surpass last year's orders.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, was up 1-32 cent at $4.94¼, and the French franc was unchanged at 4.67¼ cents.

M. S. RUKEYSER

Strikers DEMANDS Listed

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, Universal Service

New York, Jan. 8—With the drawing of the battle lines in the automobile industry, there is increasing recognition of the probability that in the end the Roosevelt administration may be called upon to facilitate an adjustment.

In the circumstances, the President's ideas on labor relations in the automotive industry are by no means mysterious. Mr. Roosevelt set them forth fully and understandingly in his statement issued nearly three years ago—on March 25, 1934—when a strike threatened at that time in Toledo.

It is informative to compare the eight formal demands recently made by the International Union, The United Automobile Workers of America, on the General Motors Corporation with the principles advocated in the 1934 White House statement.

The first current union demand was for a national conference between the company and the union to "discuss and bargain collectively" as a basis for an agreement between the corporation and "its employes as represented by the International Union, United Automobile Workers of America."

The 1934 agreement approved by the White House, did not contemplate the necessity of collective bargaining with a sole agency representing the workers. On the contrary, the agreement specifically pointed out that "the employers are free to bargain collectively with the freely chosen representatives of groups and not to discriminate in any way against the employe on the ground of his union affiliation. If there be more than one group, each bargaining committee shall have total membership pro rata to the number of men each member represents."

In view of uncertainty as to what proportion of employes the International Union represents, it is apparent that demand No. 3 goes beyond the terms of the 1934 agreement.

The second demand related to abolition of piece work and substitution of straight hourly pay. The existing setup was not disturbed by the 1934 agreement, which established machinery for arbitrating differences.

The third demand was for a thirty-hour week. This was not contemplated in the 1934 agreement.

The fourth demand was for establishment of a minimum rate of pay sufficient to assure to all American standard of living. These phrases call for specific definition. Whether or not unionized labor may fall short of the ideal, it is at present substantially above the American average for all workers.

The fifth demand relates to reinstatement of all employes who have been unjustly discharged. This calls for fact finding and judicial determination. The 1934 agreement provided that no man should be discharged because of union affiliation.

The sixth demand was for seniority based upon length of service. This runs counter to the President's statement, which said: "The industry understands that in reduction or increase of force, such human relationship as married men and long service men first and then seniority, individual skill and efficiency service."

The seventh demand was that the international union be recognized as the sole bargaining agency.

The eighth provided that speed of production shall be mutually agreed upon by the management and the union. This curb on the discretion of management was not placed in the 1934 agreement, though presumably the suggested works councils would have the right to bring up the question of speed for discussion.

In characterizing the 1934 statement of principles, the White House at that time said: "Industry and labor have now come to terms forth and the responsibilities are established. It is not too much to expect that unions and employers will observe the same ethical and moral responsibilities even though they are not specifically prescribed in any statute."

Obviously, the President intended that this should be a live document, rather than a static arrangement.

That the President was enthusiastic over the agreement may be further indicated by his statement:

"I would like you to know that in the settlement just reached by the automobile industry, we have charted a new course in social engineering in the United States.

"It is my hope that out of this will come a new realization of the opportunity of capital and labor not only to compose their differences at the conference table and to recognize their respective rights and responsibilities, but also to establish a foundation on which they can co-operate in bettering the human relationship found in any large enterprise."

HANEY ON ROOSEVELT

President Proposes SIT-DOWN STRIKE Against Constitution

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Jan. 8.—President Roosevelt's message is one of the most interesting that he has ever composed. As I will show, it contains some excellent suggestions. The gist of the whole message, however, is exactly this:

The President of the United States proposes to conduct a sit-down strike against the Constitution of the United States.

He is going to sit down inside the language of the Constitution, and insist that the agency, to which belongs the right to interpret the Constitution, must act as he desires.

This is the policy of "boring from within." It is the radical way.

The regular way to secure a change in the functioning of our government is to amend the Constitution.

Probably, however, the President senses the deep faith of the people in the framework of our republican form of government.

Thus, while his mouthpiece, Senator Robinson, is busy urging an amendment, the President himself is saying that this may not be necessary. Evidently he wants to have it said, sometime, that he was forced to favor the change.

It is interesting to find the President assuming that the nine eminent jurists who compose the Supreme Court are out of step with himself, rather than that he is out of step with them.

By unanimous decision, the court declared his national recovery administration law unconstitutional. Now he tells them that they must do as he thinks they should, or else he will find some means to get around them.

Does this position seem presumptious? Is it an attempt by the Executive to intimidate the judiciary?

The Constitution sets up the Supreme Court and determines its functions. (One of these functions is to act as a check upon radical executives who are too quick to experiment.)

At what point does an Executive who tries to dominate and dictate to the Supreme Court begin in spirit to violate the Constitution itself?

There is only one orderly and open way to adapt our local forms to new situations. That way is to amend the Constitution. Why does the President fear to propose it? Why let Senator Robinson do it?

Excellent points in the message are such as these:

The buoyant comment upon the President's trip to South America; the remark that business as a whole must earn profits; the statement that government must help private enterprise; and the frank recognition that the National Recovery Administration "tried to do too much."

These points are fine and humanitarian. We can all get behind our President on these matters.

Let us hope, therefore, that he will think better of his suggestions concerning the Supreme Court and that he will get in step with the Constitution as constitutionally interpreted.

About some of the other points, we may not be so sure. It seems that the President and most New Dealers are too prone to think that any change is new and is "progress."

In reality, all this attempt to control wages and economic life is going back to the middle ages.

Then there is the idea that the modern world is so "complex" that it has to be controlled. The fact is that the more complex such a thing is, the harder it is to control it. And attempts to regulate make it far more complex.

The President says that democracy should "continuously provide" to all, both "wider opportunity" and "greater security."

This is a welcome variation from the "more abundant life," but I, for one, still think that a sounder idea may be drawn from Benjamin Franklin, and that the government should help those who help themselves.

For example, I wonder if the President knows as much about tenant farmers as I do. (I lived six years in central Texas.)

He says that most tenant farmers, with financial assistance, advice and training, can be made self-supporting and own their farms. My observation does not bear out this bit of optimism.

In conclusion, I suppose it is hardly necessary to note the pleasant fiction that Mr. Roosevelt's domination over the last Congress was "co-operation."

Let us hope that such "co-operation" will not be forced upon the judicial department of our government.

TRUST Legislation URGED

S. E. C. ADVISES CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Securities Commission advised Congress today of a "compelling need for comprehensive legislation regulating investment trusts and companies."

"The experience of American investors with investment trusts and companies," said the commission's preliminary report on a congressionally ordered inquiry, "rest approximately $3,-000,000,000 as at Dec. 31, 1935."

The loss was computed by deducting the $2,400,000,000 valuation of investment trust assets on Dec. 31, 1935, from the net amount of money invested by the public in investment trust stocks from the beginning of each type of organization's business about 1934.

The commission said about $6,-500,000,000 was invested during the period, but about $1,200,000,000 worth of the stock was repurchased by the investors, making a net investment of about $5,300,000,000.

No statement of the dividend paid the investors was shown in the report. The loss figures represented only depreciation of capital, and the report said some of the apparent loss was eliminated last year when stock market conditions improved.

Most investment trusts, the report explained, are pools of private capital for investment in commercial stocks and bonds. An investor usually buys stocks in the Investment Trust. The Investment Trust buys other stocks, whose earnings, if any, are used to pay dividends to the Investment Trust's stockholders.

The investigation, ordered by Congress in a section of the 1935 Holding Company Act, is not complete. The commission said it must wait before making specific legislative recommendations, but already is "convinced" of the need for action.

More than 900,000 held stock in investment trusts at the end of 1935 and the list is growing rapidly, the report stated. The commission, since its creation in 1933, has registered $1,335,000,000 worth of stock issues for this type of company.

A total of 1077 companies were studied, but their active number at the end of 1935 was reduced to 674. Due to failures, mergers and other causes.

B. C. FORBES

Speech OF PRESIDENT Liked

By B. C. FORBES

Investors and business leaders have taken kindly to initial events in Congress. The security markets perked up immediately after President Roosevelt's message.

The improvement was carried farther yesterday on animated trading.

For no new disclosed reason, special buoyancy characterized dealings. Part of late rally depends more upon the Supreme Court than upon Congress. Until awaited situations come, only conjecture can be indulged in. This writer leans to the hopeful side.

Despite uppishness, which disposed to postpone definite conclusions, feel reasonably satisfied with the President's declaration insofar as it touches upon business and industry.

Although not, incidentally, similarly pleased with his expressions regarding the Supreme Court.

President Roosevelt will find the employing classes willing, even eager, to work hand-in-hand with him in spending, employment.

The overwhelming endorsement of President Roosevelt in November has been interpreted by most bankers as reflecting emphatically public insistence upon "humanizing" industry, upon more even distribution of profits between workers and owners, upon increased safeguards against financial tactics calculated to result in ruinous losses to small investors.

Pillars of pay envelopes realize better now than ever before, that they must play a wholehearted, aggressive, courageous part in striving to bring about increased employment.

Most of them are confident that one million, or even nearer two million, additional jobs could be provided this year if the administration enthusiastically puts recovery considerations before fresh reforms.

Hopeful waiting is the prevailing attitude at the moment.

Already the automotive strikes are having far-reaching restrictive effects. Steel orders are being held up. Purchasing agents are affected. Railway traffic is being hurt. Advertising and other sales activities have been cut down.

And, of course, the loss in wages and in the profits of the companies involved represents several million dollars daily.

This, in turn, will tend to injure retail trade and will mean poorer dividends for the current quarter.

In the highest circles, the whole labor problem is generating very grave concern.

President Roosevelt's stand is awaited with the most intense interest.

Just how much truth is there in the oft-repeated statement that re-employment has lamentably lagged behind economic recovery. Illuminating figures are cited by the National City Bank of New York. Thus:

"It is sometimes charged, as an indictment of industry, that the rise of production has not produced equivalent gains in employment, but, according to government figures, this is a misapprehension.

"Industrial production, as measured by the Federal Reserve Board's index for November, was 91 per cent of the 1929 peak, and the corresponding figures for industrial employment was 79.

TRADE Course ZIGZAG

N. E. GAIN SHOWN

New York, Jan. 8 (AP) —Trade and industry followed a zigzag course this week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today in the weekly survey.

Expansion was less marked in some trade divisions, while in others momentum gathered force following the interruption of the holidays.

Consumer buying was well sustained by January promotions and the enlarged call for winter needs in districts touched by subzero weather.

Low inventories brought more activity in wholesale markets with interest wide in both current replacements and eastern merchandise. Industrial progress was slackened not only by year-end shut downs, but by the spread of labor complications in some automobile plants and allied branches.

"January promotions, which featured early selling during the week," the agency said, "attracted a generous response to the somewhat restricted offerings. White sales were less numerous than at this season last year and price mark-downs were smaller."

The agency estimated retail sales for the country as a whole at from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of the same week in 1936, although gains lacked uniformity.

Percentage gains in the major geographical areas were: New England, 12 to 16; East, 12 to 18; Middle West, 12 to 15; Northwest, 10 to 12; South, 12 to 20; Southwest, 10 to 20; Pacific Coast, 4 to 8. The strike continued to be a retarding factor in the latter district, the report said.

Claims South 1936 Home Building Leader

New Orleans, Jan. 8 (INS)—The South was the home building leader in 1936, according to Lewis H. Brown, president of the Johns Manville Corp., who today had left a message this friend should continue.

Addressing building material dealers and salesmen from 11 Southern states, last night, Brown predicted this year would provide "tremendous markets" for building and building materials during the next few years.

"Steels, textiles and a number of other types of industry have realized the economic advantages of this section and I feel this trend will continue," Brown asserted.

Brown said reports in the South for the first 11 months of 1936 showed construction and improvements aggregating $280,000,000. More than a billion dollars has been invested in the South in the past six years, he added.

Governor Hurley Urges Sound Government

MASSACHUSETTS' new Governor, Charles F. Hurley, assuming office Thursday noon, addressed the Legislature, discussed many subjects, notably finance.

His speech, admirably keyed to the current period of transition, between depression and recovery, was a document more of economic necessity than of political expediency.

"This is a time for caution," he warned, "for the exercise of deliberate judgment, for prudence, foresight and discretion.

"A reckless indifference to the lessons of experience at this time could easily impair or even destroy the work of reconstruction."

Obviously, Governor Hurley realizes that Massachusetts can keep step with the nation in the forward march to prosperity or can lag behind.

He, clearly, prefers to keep step.

POLITICIANS and their hangers-on that studied the speech, seeking evidence of security for themselves, failed to find it; it was not that kind of speech.

Instead, there was much that might well alarm those that thrive on the public purse.

For, with commendable courage, the new Governor faced the fact that vastly increased Social Security obligations and post-depression measures will require the expenditure annually of millions MORE of the people's money.

And, to prevent these new expenses becoming a mill-stone around the neck of Recovery, he advocated curtailments and reasonable economies in other State departments.

As State Treasurer, throughout the depression, Mr. Hurley believed the limit of spending had been reached; election as Governor has not changed that belief.

IN THE discussion of every problem and the facing of each issue, the new Governor was refreshingly consistent.

Always, underlying his several recommendations, there was the same advice, KEEP THE NECESSARY; DO AWAY WITH THE UNNECESSARY.

The Pre-Primary Law he found to be a wholly useless tool of political cliques, and, rightly, he called for its repeal.

The cost of State institutions, including hospitals for the insane, could be reduced he believed, and in their management he urged less Utopia and more business.

Biennial sessions of the Legislature he advocated, pointing out their adoption in other States and stressing the $300,000 saving that elimination of annual sessions would mean to the taxpayers.

And, by no means least, there was in the address a sharp rebuke to attorneys whose fees from closed banks have reached the million dollar mark.

IN conclusion, Governor Hurley wrote his own editorial, a good one.

"Prejudice and injustice have no place in our deliberations," he said. "Political or class partisanship must not be tolerated.

"Government was created for the benefit of all, and no government can justify its existence which does not recognize this basic principle.

"It is our plain and primary duty to devote ourselves to the common cause of maintaining and improving the functions we exercise, irrespective of selfish considerations.

"May it be said of us, two years from today, that Massachusetts is a better and a happier State because of the contribution we have made to her welfare."

That philosophy, properly practised, spells recovery. The times demand its adoption by every Senator, every Representative, every official, appointed or elected; the people will tolerate no other.

Keeping the Volf Alive

By Nelson Harding

Why is it that we see this wolf
Returning to the door?
Because the creature has been fed
And now returns for more.

It is that food contributed
That lets the beast survive.
The wolf meat that is handed out
Still keeps the wolf alive.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Sick of life, aren't you? Dry-rotting from its stale and senseless sameness. Men, you cry, weren't made to live like this! If only you could break away . . . start over again.

And, shuddering against gray city drizzle, you stare hungrily through travel windows at hot, laughing colors . . . fragrant piles of fruit, brilliant tapa cloths, totem poles, flowers like a great, scarlet shout! Bali, Tahiti, Haiti, Bermuda—if only you could live in places like that—be yourself, your free, gypsy self, not the slave of some machine—then life would begin again!

You're right—it would. But you don't need a ticket to find their renewal. Men have been reborn in jungles, yet never left their work benches or ball-bedrooms on 87th street. And the proof is—a man did.

The man was Walt Whitman—a lusty American laborer—smelling of sweat, beer, tar, salt water and pine shavings—dreaming, loafing, working in ship yards and railroad stations. At a time when the rest of the civilized world was wearing six petticoats and blushing if you said legs, Walt Whitman kicked the silly sentimentalities and putrid pruderies right in the face—and wrote about men as they are. Whereupon, he was promptly snubbed by all the nice people and barred from the U. S. mails.

HONORED IN DEATH

Today, a sickly world honors this man who dared to live REAL, —and clutches at that reality to heal its own impotence. And the Heritage Press (New York City) has taken the forbidden book "LEAVES OF GRASS" and matched the vigor of its virile verse with illustrations by a man as forthright as Whitman himself—Rockwell Kent.

Sick of life? Starved by its futilities? Crippled by its injustice? Poisoned by its hypocrisies? Dying from its emptiness?

Then do something about it! Don't just sit there, accepting your doom with self-pitying bleats, like a slaughter-yard sheep. Help yourself! Save yourself! Save yourself by getting back to truth again, the truth about life and yourself . . . the truth that is in that book.

Read it in the spirit of those lines with which Whitman opens his "Song of the Open Road": Remember, it is not an actual, earth road of which he speaks—for few of us are free to leave our work trails to follow such a road.

THE "OPEN ROAD"

It is a greater highway he contemplates—the "open road of life" the road each of us must take, seeking our destiny. But how will we take it? Shuffling like indifferent louts? Cringing like cowards? Or walking as free men, our eyes in the air? Here is how Walt Whitman takes the road:

"Afoot and light-hearted I take to the open road.

"Healthy, free, the world before me.

"The long brown path before me leading wherever I choose.

"Henceforth I ask not good fortune; I myself am good fortune.

"Strong and content I travel the open road."

I MYSELF AM GOOD FORTUNE . . . that was Walt Whitman's creed. And again he asserts it in these lines:

"Whatever degrades another degrades me."—

Think of that when you watch a shuffling, shivering breadline of idle men.)

"And whatever is done or said returns at last to me."

A great book that will go to the very depths of your discouraged, depleted life . . . cleansing it, strengthening it . . . IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO TAKE IT AND LIVE IT. HAVE YOU?

A Worthy Cause

The picture, taken at Harvard's clinic, shows little infantile paralysis victims awaiting treatment. Early and proper care will restore them to health.

Throughout the nation, in almost every city and town, there are thousands of boys and girls like these you see. They also await treatment, though too often none is available.

This fact makes important the President Roosevelt Birthday Balls on January 30 in almost every community of the land.

For the hundreds of thousands of dollars that will be raised will be divided between the Warm Springs Foundation, where Mr. Roosevelt was restored to health, and local hospitals.

And then, to many hundreds of child victims of this dread malady in America, will come hope for relief from suffering and the promise of a happy, useful life.

There could be no more fitting observance of President Roosevelt's birthday; no better inspiration to an afflicted girl or boy than the knowledge that one, afflicted as he, also fought for health, won and now holds the country's highest office.

Boston's Birthday Ball, held this year on January 29, can be a NEW ENGLAND event. And hundreds, anxious to doubly aid little children who need aid, may attend two celebrations—Boston's one night and the event in their own communities the next night.

The Riddle Of War

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Lloyd George in a recent exclusive article to the Hearst papers said about a solution on the Continent:

"NO ONE WANTED WAR, ALTHOUGH SO ONE WANTED WAR, EVERY ONE SEEMED TO BELIEVE THAT SOONER OR LATER IT WAS UNAVOIDABLE."

The writer here, in this short statement, posed one of the most fascinating and baffling problems of the human soul: THE CONFLICT BETWEEN INSTINCT AND REASON.

Why is it that a world-wide revolt against war today, a revolt that was would unquestionably result in a colossal majority AGAINST WAR, and yet war is looked on as "inevitable" by most peoples and nations?

It is because man is a divided being; his instincts are at war with his reason.

His conscious life is at war with his unconscious life.

His aspirations are at war with his inherited habits.

In back of us all lie uncounted centuries of preying, of war, of "nations red in tooth and claw."

These are the accumulated impulses and memories in our cells and corpuscles that fatally whisper to us that war is, as Lloyd George found, "unavoidable."

America is probably the only country in the world today that individually AND collectively does not want war and that has made up its individual and collective minds not to have war unless we are invaded.

This is not true, however, of Russia, Germany, France, England and Italy.

In these countries there is a COLLECTIVE WILL TO WAR superimposed on individual will that are forged to war.

The reason for this divergence between Europe and America as to what war has been the trade of these countries since the beginning of historic time—and long before.

To them war is a COLLECTIVE-INSTINCTIVE urge. Paradoxically, these nations have never been "happy" except when murdering one another.

Here in America these warlike instincts that our ancestors brought from Europe have been sublimated. (I am almost wholly eradicated, by geographical reasons as by economic reasons.

Being a practical people above all others, we have also found that war does NOT PAY. Europe subconsciously knows it does—because her instincts have not triumphed over her reason, and maybe never will.

But the riddle propounded by Lloyd George remains, and nothing better on that riddle has been written than these four lines from Alexander Pope's "Essay on Man":

"Created half to rise and half to fall;
Great lord of all things, yet a prey to all;
Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurled:
"THE GLORY, JEST AND RIDDLE OF THE WORLD."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 8—Thoughts while strolling: Escaping steam name Lispenard H. Phisler, Sixth Avenue, looking, folk in that. There's a Wolfsmile and Nothing tea room. Had a refund suit against them always wondered who think of Kin Hubbard's Lafe Bud and Rose Cole of Tilford Mo's. The quirks stepping. Col. Joe Hartfield, Sr. the debonaire Frenchtone how as Arthur Pinple for good-by sake. And William Powell too. Those Texans in light-colored topcoats. Why isn't the billing Fontaine and Gable? Never heard: "I marvel I'm still able to hope." Dodd-Mead sounds like baby-talk reading.

For my money, Buster West as the most original of the eccentric dancers' tongue work in the dictionary—honorificabilitudinitibus. What a natural for a stage villain name John Drew's nephew has—Jack Devereaux. The cops now move-on eyes. Bread, a boy!

Cafe Sign: Persimmon Pudding. Huge Baer has a set of piano movers' shoulders for you. Nobody has surgery ever sang so ecstatically as the radio's Ken Niles. Coiffure note: Irene Dunne's delicious little girl ribbons in her hair. And Libby Holman features pink camellias. Stylish getup of Cowardly's manager, Jack Wilson. Coffee colored ensemble with a grosgrain tie. Major Bowes goes into a barber shop near the Capitol and a crowd gilds outside. For a score of years almost he has entered the same shop unnoticed. Then along came Jam!

Literary novelty: Alexander Woollcott's authoring of a signed circular letter mailed from his apartment, 10 Gracie square, in which he offers up a ballyhoo for a brand of whisky. Inspired much mad waggery. In closing, he explains his odd dereliction with this paragraph: "But why go on? They say the drama, am I saying this to you? Well, it's because the manufacturers of whisky believe it does—because her instincts have not triumphed over her reason. And maybe never will.

But the riddle propounded by Lloyd George remains, and nothing better on that riddle has been written than these four lines from Alexander Pope's "Essay on Man":

"Created half to rise and half to fall;
Great lord of all things, yet a prey to all;
Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurled:
"THE GLORY, JEST AND RIDDLE OF THE WORLD."

editor job. Then came the radio and his news reel announcements, lectures, syndicate articles and what not.

Today at an age when many active newspapermen are living in dread of the inevitable Blue Envelope, he is one of the most highly paid of his calling—and turning down enormous offers weekly.

Musical comedy plots are facing a complete about face. The smart topical stuff, kidding Hollywood, take-offs on celebrities and such are meeting the sown and hoaded for the ash can. The public as one critic points out, is fed up with the decadely elves. The swift banter of "No, 21" and the Hart-Kaufman ripostes. It shows a switch to the old charm school. A new Fritzi Scheff or Christie MacDonald with a "Bloom Time" theme would ring the bell. Sweet and swingy, dewy-spun, gilet rose arbor stuff. How nice it was after all!

A gentleman in Arkansas relays his recent visit to a mother-eaten rodeo outfit in a hill-billy clutch of the creek. The weather was drizzly and the bucking steers lacked usual ginger. He sat next to a family of Squire's Paul Webb mountaineers. The old lady was puffing a snuff stick and became more and more impatient with the desultory goings on. Finally she stood up, gave her 1920 bonnet a yank and started to go.

"Where you goin' Ma—home?" asked one of her tall gangling young-uns.

"Yer durn tootin. I'm goin' home," she snapped. "You see a better show than this at home around milkin' time."

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The national debt is up $34,407,861,000. That is a new all time high. It is 37 million dollars above the previous peak. This enormous debt worries people who cling to the old-fashioned notion that a debt is an obligation which must be paid. But the modern theory which we appear to be following is that public debts should be perpetuated. The Social Security program under which reserves of 47 billion dollars are to be created and invested in government bonds, provides a method both for perpetuating and increasing the present national debt.

Bombs dropped from Spanish insurgent planes struck within 150 yards of the United States Embassy in Madrid. This embassy is in what is called a "neutral zone." But "neutral zones" are not necessarily safe places in aerial warfare. The pilot of a bombing plane does not always know where his bombs are going to land. And in the conflict like the Spanish civil war, some pilots may not care what they hit as long as they hit something. The aim to kill and destroy is a form of insanity.

If the non-explosive ether developed by Dr. Garnet King at Los Angeles measures up to the claims made for it, medical men are not exaggerating in hailing it as the most important contribution in the field of anesthetics in half a century. More important than its non-explosive feature is the claim that it eliminates the danger of pneumonia, the ruinous after an operation. That will save many lives and prevent much suffering.

The Interstate commerce commission makes a strong plea for revision of the present 6% profit tax. In a report to Congress, it points out that weak railroads "which should use their income to improve their property, retire fixed debt, and build up a liquid surplus against a day of future trouble will, if they undertake to do so, be subject to a penalty."

This same argument applies to all lines of business and industry.

There isn't any doubt that the imposition of a heavy tax on corporation income not distributed in dividends has resulted in the payment to stockholders of huge sums a large part of which otherwise would have been added to the surplus as a temporary, emergency measure, that may have been beneficial to it as a permanent policy, it is bound to be injurious to small concerns which are trying to get a start and to companies which are heavily in debt. Penalizing people for plowing a part of their profits back into their business is a strange way of encouraging industrial expansion.

There is considerable disappointment over the refusal of the United States Supreme Court to consider an appeal from the Massachusetts Federal District Court in a case to test the constitutionality of the Social Security Act. Both the citizen challenging the validity of the law and the government urged that the Supreme Court pass on the controversy without waiting for the Circuit Court of Appeals to act. Eventually the Supreme Court will have to decide the controversy. Elimination of the Court of Appeals hearing would speed up the final decision.

Only one phase of the Social Security Law—the validity of the unemployment insurance tax—is involved in the case which the Supreme Court refused to consider at this time. That may explain the court's refusal to adopt the unusual procedure of reviewing a case which had not been passed on by the Court of Appeals. Another suit has been started in the lower courts attacking the Old Age Pension part of the law. The Supreme Court may feel it should wait until it can pass on the whole act instead of taking it up piecemeal.

War clouds over Europe and Asia have a silver lining so far as the United States is concerned. An increased demand for lead has boosted the price of this metal to the highest point since 1929. Copper prices are advancing. That means increased mining activity, more employment, increased tonnage for the railroads, more work at the smelters. This may not be permanent, but it is beneficial while it lasts.

We Greet You, Mr. Curley

FORMER Governor Curley and his attractive bride, the former Mrs. Gertrude Dennis, are on their honeymoon, far removed from Beacon Hill and politics.

In the closing hours of his term as Governor they were married, upsetting tradition, substituting cheerful nuptial chimes for the doleful bells that have rung for many an outgoing administration.

Throughout Massachusetts, New England, America and even the world there are only good wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Curley.

With President Roosevelt, we join, every one of us, in this message:

"Greetings to you and your bride on your wedding day. All the happiness and good luck in the world."

Senator Glass' Warning

SENATOR CARTER GLASS of Virginia, chairman of the enormously important appropriations committee of the Senate, gives this blunt warning to the squanderamaniacs:

"WE SHALL FOLLOW A POLICY AIMED TO EFFECT DRASTIC CUTS IN GOVERNMENTAL EXPENDITURES."

Senator Glass, both because of his personal prestige and his position in the Senate, with the added fact that he is a Democrat, is in a position to give this administration's policy of his practical application.

Congress is the watchdog of the people. Let it be also the watchdog of the Treasury —for EVERY CENT in the vaults in the Treasury comes from the brain, blood and brawn of the people.

A One-Woman Cast

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

The one-woman stage play returns after too long an absence from the New York theater. Quite alone and unassisted—an entire cast in her amazing versatility—she enacts some delightful act sketch of half a dozen personalities and makes every individual personality so real that you blink your eyes and wonder what sort of hypnotism is being employed. It isn't hypnotism—or mesmerism—but it is the illusion created by genius.

I refer, of course, to Miss Ruth Draper. Perhaps you recall her "Secretary"—her diversified monologue of a day's work of the young woman secretary of a successful business man. In this familiar sketch we plays with no fan except that afforded by her amusing change of voice tones and facial expressions, the secretary, the employer, the employer's wife and various other characters related to the little comedy.

In her new repertoire she gives us "Three Generations," "In County Kerry," sheer delightful Irish fun; "At the Court of Philip IV of Spain," "Love in the Balkans" with its imaginary folk songs, "A Slovak Lullaby," "A Swedish Polka" and "An Arabian Beggar's Chant."

SUPERB ACTRESS

Her peculiar ability to drink from the springs of humor and pathos, to portray the poignant—her whole gift for emotional appeal was never more delightfully exemplified than by these new additions to her act.

Not only a superb actress, Miss Draper has also talk as a skillful author. She is our American Duchess of Drollery. You go to her, perhaps wondering what it is all about. Very well. The curtain rises and the stage is bare, except for a table, a sofa, a groundcloth and a curtain. A woman in her early forties, taller than the average, with jet-black, lustrous hair and magnificent dark eyes—magnetic eyes—steps from the wings.

Before a packed house, she enacts her little drama—not assisting-hands—with no assistant or assistance, her only aid the magic of her genius. Before your eyes she transforms herself into a Southern belle, an Irish peasant, a Spanish grandee, a Slavish immigrant, marvelously and to the life.

Without any question, this enigmatic and mysterious lady is the greatest actress on the stage in the world. In the temporary decline of the spoken drama and talk on the stage fallen on evil days, this remarkable player, who is her own author, stage director, manager and cast, fills her theater at 10 thousand dollars a week while people storm vainly at the doors.

Ruth Draper's grandfather was Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun. Her father was William Draper, a physician. She played a small part in a play which failed, went to France to entertain the A. E. F., thrilled and delighted the army camps and went on to London to score her first success.

Shrewd and discerning critics have called her the greatest actress in the world—greater than Garbo or Katherine Cornell—greater even than Ada Rehan and Mrs. Fiske and Sarah Bernhardt of the past.

Honors have been showered upon her gifted head. The Pope received her at the Vatican. She is the only actress who was ever presented at the Court of St. James. Every Continental capital knows the thrill of her superlative artistry. Her complete equipment consists of the table, the chair, the sofa, the groundcloth and a curtain.

A MYSTERY WOMAN

In a flash she puts before your eyes a Ukrainian peasant, a Norwegian girl, an Arabian lady of the harem, a shrewd, gum-chewing telephone girl, and builds around her a dramatic tapestry, rippling flashing accompaniment of color.

Seeming publicity, she has never been interviewed. From the stage she retires behind the veil of impenetrable seclusion and mystery. How does she achieve her amazing effects? No man knows. Probably with those amazing eyes—those strange and glowing mesmeric eyes.

And be this said: Ruth Draper gets as much fun out of her drolleries as she puts over the footlights.
